

Medicare Clears Decks for Fall Election

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Twenty million Canadians may get medicare without any increase in their federal taxes, Finance Minister Gordon hinted Tuesday.

He said he hoped the country's booming economy could absorb the federal government's $300,000,000 half-share of the medicare cost.

The hint was immediately labelled another pre-election sweetener.

Countless provincial and many federal officials at the conference are now predicting that the election is on this fall for sure.

At a reception Tuesday they were planning beta on the date. The most popular: Oct. 18. They reasoned that with the general acceptance of his medicare proposal, Prime Minister Pearson has now completed the major planks of his 1963 election platform. He can now go to the country with a proud record of legislative achievement, asking for a clear mandate.

Mr. Gordon who, has long been urging Prime Minister Pearson to call an election was strangely silent Tuesday night.

What was the election date? "You're asking the wrong man," he replied, presumably referring to Prime Minister Pearson.

He was asked what major election promises of 1963 still needed to be fulfilled.

He replied that in the last election, Canadians were most interested in three subjects: policies to provide more jobs, the Canada Pension Plan and medicare.

All have now, for all intents and purposes, been accomplished.

Tuesday one provincial premier told newsmen the federal government's election program "is as plain as the nose on your face."

Several Ontario officials stated they were certain that Prime Minister Pearson sprang his medicare proposal in the manner he did to catch the provincial premiers off guard.

They said the questions their federal counterparts were asking them clearly indicated an election was coming.

Today the federal-provincial conference turns to the explosive question of offshore. Continued on Page 3

For Centenary

Delegates Invited Here Next Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Bennett of British Columbia Tuesday invited the federal government and the provinces to hold a conference in his province next year.

A spokesman said the invitation was issued for 1966, the centenary of the joining together of the B.C. mainland and Vancouver Island.

The spokesman said it was expected the invitation would be accepted, but it has not been decided whether the conference would be mainly ceremonial or a business meeting.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two prominent Canadian physicians warned Tuesday nation-wide medicare may fall for lack of manpower.

Pearson

Poverty Parley Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — A call for a conference on "poverty and opportunity" was issued at the federal-provincial conference Tuesday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Putting the proposition before provincial premiers, Mr. Pearson said he hoped the meeting could be organized for "some time around the middle of next year."

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Outlining the ground the conference would cover, he said: "We would propose that the conference should be designed to provide an expert analysis of problems and to enlist informed views on the action that is and might be taken to improve Canada's use of human resources, to enlarge opportunities and to help all Canadians to share in rising living standards."

Opportunity would be provided for those in voluntary agencies, the universities, business, trade unions, and farmers to set out their views.

PEARSON AGREES

Mr. Pearson said he is in the "fullest agreement" with those premiers advocating the value of consultation and co-ordination in programs for better utilization of human resources.

"...The federal government is assessing existing measures in relation to the problems and from that assessment proposals for further federal action will develop."

But, if the provinces agreed, federal government officials would meet provincial officials for an informal exchange of views, Mr. Pearson said.

Dr. Frank Turnbull, past president of the Canadian Medical Association, and Dr. John McCreary, president of the Canadian Association of Medical Colleges, sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson calling for federal funds for medical colleges.

The telegram said members of both institutions have been alarmed by a lack of comment from the present federal-provincial conference about federal funds for medical education.

'GRAVE DANGER'

Provincial premiers agreed virtually unanimously Tuesday to accept an offer from the federal government of $24 per capita to start provincially-operated medical insurance plans.

"It is suggested by you a Canada-wide plan comes into effect... without the medical schools of Canada having an opportunity to expand facilities, there is grave danger the plan will fail for lack of manpower," said the telegram.

"The demands which will be placed upon Canadian medical schools in the near future will be impossible to meet unless prompt and effective aid is forthcoming."

'SIZEABLE'

"The amount required will be sizeable."

"Federal funds necessary for construction alone will approach $30,000,000 per year."

Dr. McCreary and Dr. Turnbull said these views have been endorsed by senior officers of associations representing Canada's more than 30,000 doctors.

TIME LAPS

"It was hoped that the unanimity of opinion had impressed the cabinet ministers" notified of the associations' agreement, said the telegram.

"Eight to 10 years must elapse between the provision of funds for expanded medical schools and the production of more physicians," said the telegram.

Greek Cabinet Given Strength

ATHENS (AP) — King Constantine swore in five more cabinet ministers Tuesday night, strengthening the new government and his own position in a crisis that was bringing challenges to the monarchy itself.

Messenger Mulcahy

$2,800,000 Headache

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two strongarm Wall Street bandits shoved a bank messenger into a doorway Tuesday and grabbed a money sack containing about $2,800,000 in negotiable blue chip stock certificates.

The securities, which included Ford Motor Co. and Northwest Airline certificates, were owned by Goodbody & Co. of 2 Broadway.

They were being delivered to the Bank of Nova Scotia by Gerald Mulcahy of Hoboken, N.J., a messenger for the brokerage firm of Carlisle & Jacquelin, also of 2 Broadway.

Police said one of the bandits shoved a hard object into Mulcahy's back, pushed him into a doorway and told him to be quiet for five minutes while they made their escape, apparently on foot through the busy financial district.

Police described one of the men as bald and stocky, and wearing dark slacks and a short-sleeved shirt. The other was a dark suit and sun glasses.

Mulcahy told police later he waited in the doorway for five minutes before returning to his employer and reporting the robbery.

The messenger said the thieves also took his wallet. A stock exchange spokesman said cashing the certificates would be extremely difficult, though not impossible. He said before they could be cashed they would have to bear the signature of the owner of record. That signature would have to be guaranteed by either a bank or a stock exchange member.

"I think they've got a white elephant on their hands," said Edwin Soyer, a partner in the Goodbody firm. Harold Goodbody, managing partner of the firm, said the company had issued an immediate order to all brokers to stop payment on the stolen securities.

Soyer said the company was insured for the loss.

POST STRIKE FEVER SPREADS TO ISLAND

A strike-now-talk-later move among Vancouver and Montreal letter carriers spread to Vancouver Island Tuesday night.

Port Alberni's 16-man local of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers voted to go on strike at 2 a.m. Thursday in conjunction with strike action voted by Vancouver and Montreal locals.

W. Campbell, executive member of the Letter Carriers Union in Nanaimo, said his organization will follow Vancouver if strike action is taken this week. He estimated that 20 Nanaimo mailmen would be involved.

Spokesmen for the Canadian Postal Employees' Association, representing the postal clerks, William Hygh, said his members would not participate in a wildcat strike, but would follow instructions from the national headquarters in Ottawa. The Postal Employees' also have 26 members in Nanaimo.

In Victoria, E. J. Bell, president of the Letter Carriers branch here said Tuesday night a joint meeting of clerks and carrier executives ended with a decision to call a mass meeting of local members "to let them decide what action we will take, wait for word from national headquarters—or strike now."

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at the Union Centre building on Quadra Street north of Hillside and is expected to draw most of the 200 local carriers and clerks. Port Alberni union secretary Continued on Page 3

NEW YORK (UPI) — The tugboat Lerne Zee arrived alongside the helpless West German passenger liner Luxemburg late Tuesday and prepared to tow her to St. John's, Nfld. Six hundred persons were aboard the 12,500-ton liner, calmly awaiting rescue. An engine room fire Monday had left her powerless. Ideal weather conditions prevailed. The seas were light. Visibility was excellent.

Canadians Told in Moscow

Russia Ready to Help In Settling Conflict

MOSCOW (CP) — President Anastas Mikoyan indicated to a group of Canadian parliamentarians Tuesday the Soviet Union is using—or is prepared to use—its good offices to help settle the war in Viet Nam.

In effect he agreed with a suggestion by T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, that both Canada and Russia should do all they can to bring an end to the conflict.

Mikoyan

Monday for an 11-day tour of the Soviet Union. Douglas, introduced to Mikoyan by Commons Speaker

Alan Macnaughton, told him that his party is concerned over the situation in Viet Nam. He suggested the Canadian and Soviet governments should be doing more to bring about a peaceful settlement. Since neither country was directly involved in the fighting they might use their good offices—act as "go-betweens or honest brokers"—to resolve a situation that could escalate into a much more serious conflict.

HOPE FOR MISSION

Douglas expressed hope "even yet" something might come of the thus-far abortive Commonwealth peace mission for Viet Nam.

Replying in carefully measured words, Mikoyan said he appreciated the NDP leader's concern.

SOME ILLUSIONS

However, there were "some illusions" connected with the desire for a Commonwealth peace mission. Two Commonwealth countries—Australia and New Zealand—were taking a direct part in the fighting, he said.

"If they wanted peace in Viet Nam they should have withdrawn their troops."

BASIS SEEN

The Geneva agreements of 1954 provided a good basis for peace in Viet Nam but the United States had violated them.

"They have only to go back to these agreements to restore a peaceful situation," Mikoyan added.

"I understand you have great difficulty in controlling such unruly countries as the United States."

Drought and Winter: Disaster Down Under

By ROBERT COLEMAN

MELBOURNE (CP) — The onset of winter soon in eastern Australia poses an added burden for farmers who have come through one of the worst droughts with weakened herds of livestock.

Half the Australian continent is suffering from the worst drought since 1944, and in some parts it is the most severe in 50 years.

Thousands of head of sheep and cattle have died during the many rainless months, and with winter closing in, the losses are expected to go much higher.

The worst affected areas are in New South Wales, parts of Queensland in central Australia, and some parts of Victoria state.

J. G. Beale, New South Wales conservation minister, said recently Australia already has lost $10,000,000 Australian ($24,200,000) in wheat, livestock, livestock replacements and beef exports.

Beale estimated the losses could go as high as $30,000,000 ($72,000,000) to $100,000,000 ($242,000,000) before the end of the year.

Heavy weekend rains in parts of New South Wales were of little help to drought-hit areas and the cold weather—there was snow in some places where snow never before had been recorded—already is taking a toll of livestock.

Many big landowners have sold out most of their livestock in the arid areas to keep going.

In parts of central Australia, where the drought has lasted 10 years, the big ranches have had to cart water up to 50 miles for household use. These ranches have reduced their stock to one-tenth of normal.

The Hunter River area in northern New South Wales is well known as a dairy farming area, where droughts are practically unheard of. Now, it is experiencing the worst drought of the century.

The biggest exodus ever of livestock from New South Wales and Queensland into Victoria state has been under way for several months.

The drought has spared southern Victoria state, which is having a bountiful season, and the farmers have not forgotten their stricken friends. They have given hundreds of thousands of bales of hay to help relieve grassless pastures.

Victorians remember New South Wales and Queensland farmers who came to their rescue after the disastrous bushfires of 1939. Farmers from Tasmania and south Australia also have donated fodder and money. City dwellers in all states have contributed funds, too.

Experts say it is impossible to estimate livestock losses until a census is taken next year.

Justice Goldberg Ambassador Named By Johnson

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Justice Arthur J. Goldberg Tuesday abandoned his lifetime job on the supreme court to become America's new ambassador to the United Nations.

President Johnson held a ceremony in the White House rose garden to announce his surprise replacement for the late Adlai E. Stevenson.

With the 56-year-old Goldberg standing beside him, Johnson said: "At the insistence of the president of his country, he has accepted this call to duty."

'Life Bill' Wins In Lords

LONDON (UPI)—The tradition-steeped House of Lords bowed to arguments of its most illustrious members Tuesday and voted in favour of a bill to abolish capital punishment in Britain.

Parliament's Upper House approved the bill on its second reading by 204 votes to 104, a majority of 100. The bill now goes to committee before being returned to Lords for a third reading which is expected to produce some amendments.

UNLIKELY TARGET

In the event of amendments the bill returns to the Commons for a final reading and vote which would be expected to return the bill to its original state. It was hoped to complete the whole process before Aug. 6, when Parliament goes into recess, but this target date appeared unlikely to be achieved.

In approving the bill, the Lords reversed the thumbs-down stand it took when similar anti-hanging bills came before Parliament in 1948 and 1956.

The new Lords attitude appeared due at least in part to powerful arguments in support of the bill presented by Archbishop of Canterbury Dr. Michael Ramsey and the Earl of Harewood, a cousin of the Queen.

GREAT ADVENTURE

"... The President has asked me to join in the greatest adventure of man's history—the effort to bring the rule of law to govern the relations between sovereign states.

"It is that or damn—and we all know it.

"I have accepted, as one simply must."

As UN ambassador, he said, he will do his best to carry on the work of his predecessors—Republicans Warren Austin and Henry Cabot Lodge, and Democrat Stevenson.

Death Penalty Vote British Jurist Supports Ban

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's senior judge will support the abolition of capital punishment here if dangerous killers are jailed for a minimum of 20 to 30 years.

Lord Parker, the Lord Chief Justice, told the House of Lords Monday night he would vote for the bill if "certain safeguards" such as jail sentences of "more like life imprisonment" were inserted.

The bill had its final reading in the Lords Tuesday night.

Parker said he believed British police would be "reasonably happy" if they knew really dangerous men would be kept in jail for 20 or 30 years.

FAVORS ABOLITION

He said he favored the abolition of hanging "not on any great moral issue" but because of the "complete absurdities" of the present Homicide Act.

This act retains capital punishment for only certain types of murder, such as that of a policeman or murder by explosive.

Parker said poisoning, the "most cold-blooded and deliberate of murders," was not a hanging offence now.

JUDGES DISGUSTED

He said the present law led to the situation where, when three youths committed a capital murder, one could not be hanged because he was not 18, the second, aged 23, acted as lookout and did not actually attack the victim and escaped the gallows, but the third was executed because he was just a month over 18.

"I think all judges are disgusted with the Homicide Act," the jurist said.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI)—More than 200 riotous prisoners began surrendering today in the wreckage of the Mount Eden prison they had destroyed with fire.

They came out of the ruins singly to be checked for weapons and transferred to other prisons. Their surrender ended 23 hours of rioting and arson in the only maximum-security prison in New Zealand.

The prisoners, some serving life terms for murder, held off hundreds of New Zealand soldiers and police positioned around the prison in suburban Auckland.

SEARCHLIGHTS

Throughout the night, searchlights swept the smoking walls and ruins while firemen stood by high-pressure hoses to foil any mass escape attempt.

In a pre-dawn incident, a group of prisoners broke into the prison kitchen and barbed their week's rations over the fires burning in the courtyard.

The riot began early yesterday when two prisoners, armed and masked, were bloodied in a break-out attempt. They overpowered three guards and freed

Rivard Evasive During Quiz

MONTREAL (CP)—A battery of police officers interrogated Lucien Rivard Tuesday but got little in the way of solid information from the recaptured narcotics suspect, a Quebec Provincial Police officer said.

The officer, who asked that his name be withheld, said Rivard is a smooth and evasive customer. He said Rivard, when questioned about his whereabouts since his sensational escape from Bordeaux jail here March 2, replied:

"I guess you really want to know where I've been. I guess it's been hanging you long enough, so I'll tell you.

"I've been on holidays. Naturally, I spent most of my time in la belle province."

PEKING (Reuters)—The former acting president of China before the Communist takeover was welcomed home with open arms Monday after 16 years in self-imposed exile.

Gen. Li Tsung-jen spent most of the time in the United States which he denounced on arrival here as "our foreign enemy" which is trying to dominate the world.

Premier Chou En-lai laughed and cracked jokes as Li met the rest of the welcoming delegation, posed for photographs and read a statement inviting other exiles to "return to the embrace of the motherland."

BROKE WITH CHIANG

Li said he still feels "mortified" at his failure to side with the new Communist government in 1949. He referred to himself as an exile with a guilty past.

The 74-year-old general, who broke with nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek in 1948, urged other ex-patriots to come home and unite against the U.S. in the struggle for reunification of China.

WARM RECEPTION

On his arrival by special plane, Li exchanged warm handshakes with Chou, three vice-premiers and other top officials who ousted his Kuomintang government 16 years ago. (His Hong Kong Li's return was seen as a propaganda triumph for Peking over Washington.)

(There was speculation Li would be given the post of a vice-chairman of the Chinese People's republic.)

LONDON (AP)—A student protest is ruffling the traditional tailcoats at one of England's oldest and most elegant boys schools.

Says the Eton College Chronicle:

"With considerable regret we feel that school dress has had its day."

The Eton Chronicle is the student publication of Eton College, founded 525 years ago by King Henry VI.

For generations a large proportion of Britain's prime ministers, cabinet members, members of Parliament, literary figures and business and industrial leaders have been Eton graduates.

And for generations Eton students have worn tailcoats, thick button-up vests, stove-pipe top hats, starched white collars and tiny ties.

The Eton Chronicle adds:

"What was with-it fashionable yesterday, is the height of eccentricity today. The added emphasis of distinctive clothing to class differences is not, in 1965, the most tactful of approaches."

The real reason behind the protest appeared, however, to be more down to earth.

"There is the waistcoat for instance," said the Chronicle.

Mariner IV Chief No Life On Mars Says Lab

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—The chief of America's Mariner-IV project said Tuesday, "We've seen no signs of life"—animal or vegetable—in pictures of the planet Mars flashed to Earth by the high flying space camera.

Dan Schneiderman, Mariner-IV project manager for Jet Propulsion Laboratory, told United Press International "we never, at any time, ever dreamed we would get anywhere close enough to look for life."

Marvellous Mariner-IV successfully beaming a 7½-month journey through space, carved a 4,000-mile long photographic swath in a dramatic, 25-minute dash to within 8,118 miles of the mottled red face of Mars last Wednesday.

HAZY HORIZON

The first three pictures—showing a hazy Martian horizon against the black velvet background of space, a mysterious W-shaped formation in one of the planet's deserts and a crater-like depression about 13 miles across—were released to the world.

But officials refused to substantiate reports by a news service (not UPI) that scientists had spotted "vegetation" on Mars.

"The Mariner project office has not received any hint from any individual, whether scientist or experimenter, as to such an interpretation of any dark spots," Schneiderman said of the report.

DARK SPOTS

"Not a single soul has even suggested these might possibly be anything except dark spots."

"That's a cold scientific fact," Schneiderman emphasized, "and I'll sign an affidavit to that effect."

Rivard is wanted in Laredo, Tex., on a grand jury indictment which alleges conspiracy in dope-smuggling.

Man Surrenders In Theft of Goya

LONDON (UPI)—Police Tuesday charged a man who gave himself up with the theft of the $32,000 Goya portrait of the Duke of Wellington.

There was no indication why Kempton Bunton, 61, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, gave himself up Monday night or of the motives behind the theft.

Anonymous letters during the three years and nine months the source of national pride was missing indicated the thief wanted the painting exhibited for a "ransom" to be paid to charity.

The portrait was stolen from a wall of the National Gallery here Aug. 21, 1961.

It was recovered undamaged May 27 of this year from a luggage office of a railway station in Birmingham.

The ticket had been sent to a London newspaper.

Numerous letters and telephone calls added more heat and little light to the whereabouts of the famous painting during the period the painting was missing.

These mysteries may be cleared up as the Bunton case unfolds.

'RANSOM' FOR CHARITY

Several anonymous letters were written demanding "ransom" money during the time the portrait was missing.

They stipulated that the money go to charity.

Police had been questioning Bunton since early Tuesday morning.

Handwriting experts were among police specialists reported engaged in the interrogation.

MATTER OF PRIDE

Letters did not stop coming after the portrait had been recovered in May.

One cryptic anonymous note said, "Lost—one sporting offer. Property has won—charity has lost."

The portrait had a two-way tie with British pride.

It is a portrait of a hero—the victor at the Battle of Waterloo with Napoleon.

It also had been national property for only 22 days when it was stolen. It was purchased for the National Gallery at a price of $32,000, after an American had bought it at auction. He agreed to sell it back to keep it in Britain.

Life's Work Tied Northland Links

English-born Herbert Wheeler was a man who worked himself up from a supporting to a leading role in the development of the north.

Going there as a clerk, he stayed to become president of the White Pass and Yukon Route.

And when he retired in 1940, he stayed during the war years to help in the building of vital air facilities at Whitehorse.

DIED AT 91

Mr. Wheeler, who died Friday at the age of 91 at the family home, 1605 Richmond, had been living in Victoria for the past 20 years.

He had lived here briefly just before the turn of the century before setting out for the Yukon.

Mr. Wheeler was born in Lancashire, England, but his family moved to Cork when he was three years of age. He came to Canada when he was 13 and homesteaded near Enderby, B.C., and his family followed in 1905 and settled in Victoria.

INTO NORTH

But in the meantime, Mr. Wheeler had already struck out for the north.

In 1897, he joined a survey party trying to find a route through Haynes, Alaska, to the Klondike.

Afterwards, he came to Victoria but in 1900 went to Whitehorse to become a clerk for the Canadian Development Company, then operating stern-wheelers.

ON FIRST STAGE

The company became the White Pass and Yukon Route and Mr. Wheeler joined the mail section, and was a passenger on the first stage to travel the overland trail to Dawson in 1902.

He became general manager of the company in 1915 and president in 1928 and saw the railway and the aircraft come to the Yukon.

When he had gone into the north, dogsleds and snowshoes had been the only means of traffic.

AT FUNERAL

Among those attending the funeral Monday was Clifford J. Rogers, who followed Mr. Wheeler as president of the company.

Surviving relatives include a daughter, Mrs. Mary Evelyn Maynard, of Victoria, and son, Herbert Victor Gordon, of Ottawa.

CPA Crash

One Passenger Policy-Holder

VANCOUVER (CP)—An insurance company official said Monday only one passenger on a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane which exploded and crashed near 100 Mile House, now is believed to have taken out a pre-flight insurance policy.

J. Leonard Whittaker, vice-president of Mutual of Omaha's Canadian head office in Toronto, said the name of one policy buyer corresponded with a name on the list of 52 victims of the crash, but there is some doubt if it was the same person.

He would not disclose the name or say how much money is involved.

RECONSTRUCTION

A Vancouver paper reported last week there was a $125,000 policy on Douglas G. Edgar, 40, of Surrey, B.C.

The insurance company originally said two passengers held policies with benefits totalling about $200,000.

Meanwhile, Dr. T. G. How, a department of transport official here, said Monday reconstruction of the tail section of the hanger at Vancouver airport.

Parts of the plane were brought by truck to Vancouver from 100 Mile House Sunday. A bomb is still suspected as the cause of the crash.

A CPA spokesman said there had been no decision on what would be done with wreckage remaining at the crash site because it had not been released by D.O.T. officials.

RCMP at 100 Mile House said they have had no trouble with possible souvenir hunters at the crash site.

Freight Moving

Railmen End Differences

VANCOUVER (CP)—Yardmen employed by the Canadian Pacific Railway settled differences with the company Tuesday night and almost immediately started freight moving again along the waterfront.

Earlier in the day engineers and all yard workers booked off as "sick" to protest suspension of a five-man crew.

The crew refused Monday to cross a grainhandlers' picket line to move a CPR freight car from the strikebound Alberta Wheat Pool terminal. The men were reinstated with the settlement.

The Pool's dispute with grainhandlers has spread to other elevators in the port, but Tuesday's flare-up marked its first advance into the ranks of other unions who are stating their support of the grainhandlers.

Cars at the Alberta Wheat Pool elevator have been labelled "hot." Terms of Tuesday night's settlement were not announced.

Freight moved slowly during the day as supervisory personnel manned yard engines and switches, but passenger trains were not affected.

'SOME HEADWAY'

Mediation continued to get at the heart of the grainhandlers' dispute, with "some headway on main issues" reported by federal mediator Dr. G. Neil Perry.

He said both sides agreed Tuesday to a recess of a few days while he holds private discussions with the representatives.

Shipments from six elevators here have slowed as members of the International Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers (IUB) refused to handle grain they term "hot."

The union claims grain originally destined for the Alberta Pool—which was struck by grainhandlers June 2—is being diverted to other pools.

The elevator companies say they must handle the grain under terms of the Canadian Grain Act and orders of the Wheat Board.

Couple Die In Mishap, Shooting

KITIMAT (CP)—Mrs. June Victoria Bernacki, 33, whose husband was killed in an industrial accident Monday, was found dead in her home here Tuesday.

RCMP said she died of a gunshot wound to the chest and foul play is not suspected.

The woman's husband, Michael Kenneth Bernacki, 35, was killed Monday when struck by a falling tree, three miles north of here.

An inquest into his death was adjourned until July 28. No date has been set for an inquiry into Mrs. Bernacki's death.

The couple, who had no children, married in 1955.

Develop A Powerful Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 499B, Chicago, Ill. 60614. A postcard will do.

Daughter 'of Spencers May Be Most Senior

Satisfaction is growing old enough to compete for the title of Greater Victoria's most senior citizen — and enjoying the competition.

Ever since Colonial writer James K. Nesbitt got to wondering in print last week about who the oldest resident might be, the entries have poured in.

Here are the standings as of Tuesday.

By JAMES K. NESBITT

It was suggested last week that Arthur D. Crease, QC, at 93, could be the oldest living native of Greater Victoria, now that Miss Evaline Pemberton has gone at 98.

However, Mr. Crease is nosed out by Mrs. Fred Grant, of 1247 Beach Drive who, according to her son, Leslie R. Grant of West Vancouver, was born in Victoria Aug. 17, 1870, which will make her 95 next month.

Mrs. Grant is the oldest of the eight daughters of pioneer Victoria department store magnate David Spencer, whose firm was sold in 1947 to the T. Eaton Company. There were also five Spencer sons—Chris, Dave, Will, Deans and Victor. Five of the Spencer daughters are living.

All her life Mrs. Grant has been a pillar of the Methodist church, in her girlhood days attending the old James Bay Methodist, which her parents largely endowed.

As a child she played with Emily Carr and her sisters, who lived a stone's throw from the Spencer home at Belleville and Birch Cane Walk. The older Spencer girls and the Carr girls attended Victoria high together; in the 1890s, there's a newspaper mention that Miss Annie Spencer and Miss Emily Carr took prizes in penmanship. Emily was 13 months younger than Mrs. Grant.

Mrs. Grant was married here in September of 1894, as noted in The Colonist: "At the residence of the bride's parents, Belleville Street, Mr. Fred W. Grant, manager of the Nanaimo branch of David Spencer & Co. Limited, and Miss Annie Spencer, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Spencer, prominent and highly respected residents of this city.

"Rev. S. Cleaver officiated at the ceremony, which was very quietly celebrated, only a few intimate friends being present. Miss Josie Spencer, and Miss Charlotte, sisters of the bride, acted as bridesmaids, while Mr. J. Grant, the groom's brother, was best man.

"By the afternoon train Mr. and Mrs. Grant left for their new home in Nanaimo, followed by the good wishes of their many friends."

Besides her son, Mrs. Grant has three daughters here, Mrs. G. W. Linton of Gordon Head Road, Mrs. A. G. Shepherd, 1820 Chestnut Street and Mrs. E. H. Street, 1247 Beacon Drive.

Side-Moving Car for Parking One Wish of Women Drivers

Rear-window wipers, steering wheel warmers and much more space for storing things — these are among the things women drivers would like to see in their new cars, says the B.C. Automobile Association.

The BCAA bases its statement on a recent U.S. survey which drew 1,512 responses and nearly as many ideas. All of them will be turned over to the design departments of the automobile manufacturers.

Among the other items requested by the women were:

A car that goes sideways for easier parking.

Small windows on the bottom of each front door so the driver could see the curb when parking.

Built-in vacuum cleaner for car carpets and upholstery.

Ratchet-type prop for trunk lid to accommodate special loads such as Christmas trees or other outside objects.

One-way glass so that when the car stalls, other drivers can't see that it's a woman at the wheel.

Car radios with ear-plug speakers so teenagers can listen to their special brand of music without driving the adults distracted.

Improved ashtrays that will really put out a cigarette.

Coin holders for correct change at coin-operated parking lot gates and turnpike toll stations.

Several women took the easy way out, the BCAA notes. The feature they wanted most in their next car, they said, was a chauffeur.

Garden Notes

No Males, No Corn

By M. V. CHESNUT
I think I told you about the letter I received asking if it was a good idea to cut down the potato plants in order to "throw all the strength into the potatoes and make them bigger." I thought we had this screwball nonsense stopped cold, but the other day I had a note from a reader whose neighbour had advanced an equally wacky suggestion.
My correspondent has a nice patch of corn in her backyard vegetable plot, and the tassels are just beginning to unfold. She was told to cut away all these plumes as fast as they form, to make for higher and better cobs of corn. Fortunately, she decided to check with me first, otherwise she wouldn't have had any cobs on her corn, or at least there wouldn't be any kernels of corn on the cobs.
You see, these tassels or plumes are the male flowers of the corn plant, and without the pollen from those tassels, there can be no mouth-watering corn-on-the-cob from the plant.

embryo seed kernel within the cob, and each silk must be fertilized or impregnated by a grain of pollen from the male tassel, either from its own plant or from another plant nearby, before that seed kernel will swell and develop.
It is a critical time in the life of a corn plant when the tassel or plume appears and ripens, for this is when pollination takes place. If it is incomplete or unsuccessful, the cobs will fill out only partially or not at all. Insects play no part in the pollination of corn—it is all done by the wind.
This is why a single long row of corn in the garden will seldom produce a satisfactory crop. The wind, blowing across the row, carries the male pollen AWAY from the waiting female silks below, and these unfertilized, virgin threads wither away without producing any seed kernels. Corn should always be grown in multiple rows or in square blocks so that pollen from one row will be reasonably sure to reach the silks of the next.
Another common point of dissension between gardeners is whether or not the suckers should be torn off from the base of the stalks, and I have seen neighbours come close to blows over the sucker argument. Actually, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says it makes no difference to the yield whether you take 'em off or leave 'em on. The big Iowa corn farmers do not sucker their corn, and personally, I leave them on.

I can see how these suckers could rob the parent plant of nutrients if the corn was growing on poor, hungry soil, but no gardener with all his marbles would ever attempt to grow corn on such lean ground. Corn is a big, hungry plant and the richest, most heavily manured soil in the garden is none too good for it. Even in rich soil, corn should be given several supplementary feeds of chemical fertilizer along the rows through the growing season. Under this treatment, there should be plenty of food to spare for the suckers, and I figure their foliage contributes something to the health and general welfare of the plants.
Besides, the corn plant is unusually resentful of root disturbance—this is why corn is so very difficult to transplant successfully. Now, it is pretty difficult to wrench those suckers off without shifting the roots a trifle, and this could start the plant sulking and delay the crop by as much as a week or ten days.

The sticky silk threads which protrude from the tips of the cobs—the corn silks—are the female "flowers." Each of these silks is connected to an

ART BUCHWALD Gives Story Behind News

Oil on Wrong Waters

WASHINGTON—Last week a seaman aboard the United States aircraft carrier Shangri La supposedly turned the wrong valve to the ship and, instead of releasing 2,600 gallons of water, he released 2,600 gallons of oil.
This wouldn't have been too bad, except the carrier was anchored off the Riviera resort of Cannes and the oil floated into shore, ruining the beaches and vacations of thousands and thousands of Frenchmen and tourists.
Many theories have been advanced in Washington as to why the sailor did it, and while no one is agreed as to which is the correct one, it is generally agreed that it was no accident.
One of the theories being bandied about is that the idea originated in the White House a few weeks ago at a cabinet meeting.
The president happened to say, "Isn't there any way we can pour oil on the troubled waters of France and ourselves?"
Dean Rusk, who was sitting on the president's right, said, "We're working on it now, sir."
The secretary of state put the problem to his people, who said they didn't have the money to do it. Someone suggested turning the problem over to the defense department, which has been standard operating procedure in the state department of late.
The defense people said the best way to do it was to literally pour oil on the waters to show de Gaulle U.S. intentions were friendly.
Not only would it be a dramatic way of showing the French U.S. policies were peaceful, but it would also show them that, in spite of the fact that the U.S. was short of gold, it did have oil to spare.

The navy was assigned the job and orders were immediately sent to the fleet to empty the oil tanks of the aircraft carrier Shangri La in the nearest French port.
The admiral thought something had gone haywire so he called Washington to confirm the orders.
He was told: "It's the president's idea."
So the admiral passed the order on to his subordinates.
The valve was opened in the Cannes harbor and the oil started heading for the beaches.
Instead of the French getting the message, that oil was being poured on troubled waters, they reacted in a typical French manner and accused the United States of a hostile act.
The president, when he heard the news, was furious and said, "Why does everyone take everything Ah say literally?"
He immediately ordered the navy to send in their crews to clean up the mess and replace the beaches with new sand.
To cover up the diplomatic blunder, the navy put out the story that a sailor had inadvertently turned the wrong valve. (He was, in effect, decorated in a secret ceremony.)
The French were finally mollified and it was decided in Washington that another approach to Franco-American relations would have to be tried.
While the oil fiasco didn't fulfill its original purpose, it did have an interesting side effect. Although American tourists have never been asked to play home this year, more tourists than ever have gone to Europe.
Many were on the Riviera when the incident occurred, and one high official said, "We can't stop Americans from going abroad, but at least we can see that they don't have a good time."

Purely Personal Prejudices: Only when we stop regarding infidelity as a cause of broken marriages, and begin treating it as a symptom of some deeper disturbance, will we be on the right road toward solving the problem of two personalities trying to get along on a permanent basis.
If a restaurant offers "free parking" to its patrons, it should pay its parking attendant enough so that he doesn't behave sullenly toward those guests who leave him less than a lavish tip.
Fictionalized accounts of "brilliant" criminals are the most dangerous nonsense that can be put into young people's heads; most criminals are caught because of their own stupidity rather than the astuteness of the police; as Bruyere said, "If poverty is the mother of crimes, lack of sense is the father."
With all the enormous technological advances we've made in other areas, why does the average light bulb still burn out as fast as it ever did?
It's surprising how few people realize that they give the most naked and accurate portrait of their own character by the manner in which they describe other people's characters; when a man talks about himself, he is guarded, but when he talks about others, he often feels a freedom that unwittingly betrays himself into self-revelation.
The etymology of slang can never be traced satisfactorily—now, for instance, did a washroom come to be called a "john," as Bruyere said, "If poverty is the mother of crimes, lack of sense is the father."
"John," and why isn't the feminine washroom called a "Joan"? (Oddly enough, the British "W.C." which is now universal throughout Europe, has never caught on in North America.)
The futility of arguing with a person whose mind is as narrow as his generalizations are broad was admirably summed up by Housman, when he wrote: "The worst part about having no judgment is that one never misses it."
Looking at a new pair of summer slacks that had just come out of the dryer, I asked my wife what had happened to them. She shrugged and said succinctly: "They're wash-and-wear. It washed them, and they wore."
Intelligent patriotism is the rarest (and most valuable) of qualities, because it leads to an appreciation of the deep feelings other peoples have for their countries; undiluted patriotism, which lacks this sense of sympathy, breeds an attitude of superiority that can only lead to war.
The hardest fact in the world for a parent to recognize and accept is that by the time a child is 17 or 18, everything good and bad that can be done has already been done, and nothing the parent is going to say will affect the child's basic behavior.
In the past, some distinction might be made between "just" and "unjust" wars; but as soon as war becomes "total," as it is today, the distinction disappears, and no "just" was in even remotely possibly.

'Bond' Feuds with Bosses

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Sean Connery and his discoverer Harry Saltzman (with partner Cubby Broccoli) are feuding. It's like a Hollywood marriage. At the beginning when everyone is poor, everyone loves everyone. With fame and fortune, the fights begin, usually followed by a divorce. I doubt whether producer Harry and actor Sean will divorce. What would a James Bond picture be without Connery? There will have to be some concessions on each side. Especially as Charlie Feldman, who owns the only Bond story, Casino Royale, outside of the Saltzman-Broccoli company, is reportedly making a deal with S. and B. for Sean to star in his property.
David Lean is where he is as a director because of the tremendous care he takes with the smallest detail in his films. To denote the change from winter to summer in Doctor Zhivago, he went from an icicle on the profile of Omar Sharif to a daffodil that gradually became a field of daffodils. It was important to him that the first daffodil be "male" daffodil. "It must suggest virility and strength."
Michael Caine ("Alfie") received a call from a Mrs. Johnson. He phoned the given number and asked, "Is this Mrs. Johnson?" "Yes," she replied. "What can I do for you?" Michael asked. "I want to know about Sidney Fury who directed you in The Ipcress File," said the lady. "Excuse me, Mrs. Johnson," said Caine, "but I can't recall where we met." "Mrs. Mrs. Richard Johnson," replied the lady. Daylight dawned. "Are you by any chance the wife of Richard Johnson the actor?" "Yes, I am." "You must be Kim Novak." "Yes, I am." "We've never met," said the in-shock Caine, "but I do know who you are."

Terry-Thomas, the popular British comedy star, was signed by Howard Koch of Paramount for a co-starring role with musical favorites Jan and Dean in Easy Come, Easy Go. Terry plays a zany movie star. The picture starts next Monday with Bobby Roberts producing and Barry Shear as director.
Mike Nichols is using one set at Warners for his Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton starrer, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf. Caught a glimpse of Liz on the lot, all in pink—a pink shift, pink bandeau and pink thong sandals. I had been told she had gained weight for the role of the college professor's middle-aged wife, but it was not showing when I saw her. Whether one likes the Burtons or not, no other couple on stage or screen has the same kind of glamour. They are the king and queen of show business. Their last film, The Sandpiper, has had some bad reviews. But I'll bet that the picture and the stars make a fortune from it. Elizabeth's salary was $1,250,000 against a hefty percentage. Richard received $750,000, plus a percentage.
After Virginia Woolf, Richard and Elizabeth have a date in Italy with Zeffirelli for the filmed version of The Taming of the Shrew. If they want to do Macbeth as a movie, I am sure there will be a dozen eager financiers. And yet, Sir Laurence Olivier, the best actor of our day, could not raise the money to film Macbeth.
Wasn't it Sir Laurence who wired Richard at the height of the Cleopatra business: "What do you want to be, an actor or a household word?" To which Richard replied, "Both." He is.

Medicare Agreement

OTTAWA (CP) — All-but-unanimous agreement was reached among provincial premiers Tuesday to accept a federal offer of $14 per capita to start provincially-operated comprehensive, universal and transferable medical insurance plans across Canada on the centennial of Confederation, July 1, 1967.

The major hold-out was the dean of the conference, Premier Manning of Alberta, who alone has attended every federal-provincial summit meeting since the Second World War.

Other premiers endorsed eagerly or reluctantly the plan advanced Monday by Prime Minister Pearson. But as Finance Minister Gordon put it after the conference moved to the next item on its agenda: "They're not 100 per cent in agreement, but I think it's going through."

TAX TRANSFER

The plan is to have Ottawa pay-through transfer of taxation rights to the provinces — roughly half the cost of provincially-operated medical care insurance covering all physicians' services. Everyone would contribute through taxes or premium, and everyone would benefit even if he moved from one province to another.

Premier Manning expressed his firm objections to the conference and told reporters later he did so on four fundamental points:

OPPOSES COMPULSION

"If people don't want to rely on the state, they should not be compelled to do so."

"It is unnecessary for government to bear the full cost of medical care insurance (for people with ability to pay)."

"It is most unwise to wipe out all the private insurance companies providing this kind of service."

"This program is very unsound from the standpoint of their being more urgent priorities."

A reporter asked whether he did not want any part of the $14 per capita.

OBJECTS STRONGLY

"What I strongly object to is most of all at these conferences is reducing everything to dollars and cents," Mr. Manning said. "We're talking about principles."

Premier Roberts of Ontario was one of the reluctant participants. His government has a plan coming into effect next year based on voluntary subscriptions to privately-operated insurance plans working within rate and benefit standards set by the government.

He was unable to forecast what would become of the Ontario Health Services Insurance Act and said he was not categorically opposed to the compulsory feature of universal insurance.

Premiers Stanfield of Nova Scotia and Shaw of Prince Edward Island feared the cost of medical insurance in their provinces, where there is a higher-than-average proportion of elderly people, would be greater than the $28 per capita national average cost on which the federal plan is predicated.

Premier Bennett of British Columbia took the floor in a lengthy criticism of the proposal on much the same lines as Mr. Manning. But the B.C. premier concluded his remarks by supporting it.

Outside the conference room he told reporters B.C. has a medical care plan to go into effect this autumn and there will be no change in it. But when federal payments start July 1, 1967, British Columbia will be "happy to co-operate," he added.

B.C. Airlines Get U.S. Permits

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson has approved the granting of operating permits to two Western Canada firms—Pacific Western Airlines, Vancouver, and Rapid Air, Penticton, B.C.

The Civil Aeronautics Board said Tuesday the permits are for non-scheduled service to the United States until Dec. 31, 1972.

Bennett 'Goes Along with This Now'

Provinces Agree—No Banks

OTTAWA (CP) — None of the provinces now challenges the basic policy of the federal government which is to keep the provinces out of the banking business, Finance Minister Gordon said Tuesday night.

He told reporters at a press briefing Premier Bennett of British Columbia "goes along with this now," and Revenue Minister Klerans of Quebec is not really at odds with the policy.

"Mr. Klerans feels the provinces or some of their pension funds should have the right to invest for investment purposes in the shares of chartered banks," Mr. Gordon said.

"There is no basic objection to minor investments," he added.

But he recalled he had suggested the House of Commons banking committee examine the subject and suggest what rules should prevail.

QUESTION ASKED

A reporter asked what percentage of bank stock he would consider more than "a minor investment." Mr. Gordon said he would leave that to the Commons committee.

"But if the provinces want to get into the banking business, this is moving into a field which is clearly the constitutional jurisdiction of the federal government," Mr. Gordon added.

Mr. Gordon said in the Commons May 18 the government would be prepared to give sympathetic consideration if the committee recommended that provincial government pension funds be permitted to invest in chartered bank stocks in a modest way, possibly on a non-voting basis.

But he did not want provincial governments becoming influential shareholders in the chartered banks.

The statement was made at a time when Premier Bennett, thwarted in his desires to set up a federally-chartered provincial bank, said the province could buy shares in one of the existing chartered banks on the open market.

Attending this week's federal-provincial conference, Mr. Gordon said he had not had any discussions with delegates in the conference room or outside it on the issue, though he had been the butt of some quips.

Mr. Bennett said in an interview here it is up to the federal Parliament to set the rules on how banks should be incorporated, and "we agree with that 100 per cent."

"We want a very large chartered bank with headquarters in British Columbia, but completely under federal rules," he added.

Ex-U.S. Red Dies at 74

NEW YORK (AP) — Benjamin Gitlow, a Socialist party candidate for vice-president in the 1920s and head of the American Communist party prior to the Second World War, died Monday at his suburban Crompton, N.Y., home. He was 74. Gitlow, who later renounced his party affiliation and became an adviser to the late president Herbert Hoover, wrote the book "The Whole of Their Lives, an expose of the Communist party

U.S. Sells Food To Congolese

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — An agreement for the sale of $12,000,000 worth of U.S. agricultural commodities to The Congo has been signed here. The agreement provides for 27,465 bales of cotton, 60,000 tons of wheat and flour and 36 tons of rice, all of which will be sold to The Congo under the U.S. food for peace program.

Coffee Break Costs $410

OTTAWA (CP) — If you take the average salaries of delegates to the federal-provincial conference and carry out the mathematical exercise to its illogical conclusion, it turns out that a 15-minute coffee break costs the taxpayers about $410.

This does not include the $21.40 for the coffee itself.

The exercise is hinged on an average salary of $12,000 for the 214 delegates, and based on a five-day week, it means the combined average daily salaries for conference personnel is $9,844. This puts the average individual salary at $46 a day.

Assuming a six-hour working day within the conference, the two daily coffee breaks added up to $320 in salaries.

Officials say the over-all cost of the federal-provincial conference would be impossible to establish in detail. Much of the cost involves no more than a bookkeeping operation. Personnel and supplies are merely borrowed from other duties and departments.

What can you expect when you bring home your 1965 Rambler Classic?

One very pleased wife. Be prepared for impulsive displays of affection in public. But be firm. Don't let her drive it until next week.

A surprisingly-ambitious son. He'll beg to wash your car at least twice a week. And now that you've bought a swinging car like this, maybe he'll admit you really are "with it"!

New respect from car-park attendants. They might even start calling you "Sir". Try to keep the size of your tips within reason.

A sad service station owner. He'll say things like, "Well, I guess we won't be seeing much of you around here any more." Buy a bottle of pop there once in a while to make him feel better.

Grudging admiration from your neighbour. Deep inside, he knows you've one-upped him again. Don't rub it in by telling him about all the great Rambler features (unless he really insists).

One rather self-satisfied Rambler dealer. He knows you're going to be happy. And so is your family. And so is his family.

By the way, you can also expect: spirited, gas-saving performance, effortless handling, luxurious comfort, long-lasting quality, solid construction features including Deep-Dip Rustproofing, Double Safety Brakes, Ceramic-Armoured Muffler and safe, strong rattle-free Single Unit Construction.

Roads Aid Tourists As Travel Booms

By IAN SMITH
Third of a Series

The roads helped, but they weren't the only reason for the tourist boom, according to officials of the B.C. Travel Bureau.

Says R. L. Colby, director of the bureau: "The network of highways is undoubtedly important, but it's just as important to have something to offer the tourist once we get him here."

"And I think the province has many outstanding types of tourist attractions."

He pointed out that facilities include fine hotel accommodations, good eating places, various tourist businesses such as the Butchart Gardens, as well as natural attractions such as are found in the various parks.

Travel Promotion

"And then there's promotion," said Mr. Colby. "Having got these facilities, you have to sell them."

That's where the B.C. Travel Bureau comes into its own, and he outlined the work that is done.

"One of the most important areas of promotion is through the various news media, such as newspapers and radio. But we also distribute motion pictures through the National Film Board."

Australians

Hit by Floods

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters). Floodwaters poured into the town of Lismore 500 miles north of here today when the river Richmond broke its banks after days of torrential rain.

Police said unless the rain eased Lismore and other northern river centres will face their worst flooding in record.

Lismore has a population of 20,000 persons.

Poisonous Gas Kills Six Men

SPROUT, (AP) — Six electricians died one after another from poisonous fumes in a 40-foot well at a food plant here. The first one went down to check a water pump inside the well. When he failed to return 10 minutes later, the second electrician went down. One by one four others followed. The six were found dead by two other workers who were not seriously affected by the fumes.

"Any picture of the province has to help us."

Film Showings

From January to March, the province was helped nearly 5,000 times by private showings of films, and in addition there were 84 television shows (seven in colour) over the same period.

The province is also advertised via sports shows and through B.C. House in San Francisco, which makes sure that Californians know that the province exists.

Sports Writers

Part of Mr. Colby's business is to take advantage of as much free advertising as possible, and he does this by encouraging travel writers to visit B.C. "This is the kind of advertising you can't buy," he says. "If an editor from a sports magazine wants to come to the province, we make sure he catches fish and goes away happy."

The province is also advertised by the magazine Beautiful B.C., as well as various other booklets and publications, and the government matches dollar for dollar any tourist promotion done by a city or area within the province.

Economic Boom

"It's not by accident that tourists come to the province," said Mr. Colby.

Other factors have helped cause the flood of tourists, however, and one of these is the economic boom that the whole continent is enjoying.

Said John Buckley, assistant director of the travel bureau: "People have more time now, with the five-day week, and they have more money to spend as well. It's only natural that tourism is up."

"And then there's been the population explosion in the western states," he added. "California is growing at the rate of 1,500 people a day."

"Even if we get just a few of those people, it's bound to help."

He expects the boom to continue. "As long as the economy holds steady or rises, we should reflect this in the tourist trade. There's no reason why it should tail off at this point."

Project Hospitality

To keep the boom going, however, like many tourist officials, he has his own pet project—hospitality.

"In the end, it's repeat business that will cause the flow of tourists to increase," he said, "and you can bet they won't come back unless they're treated well."

"We've got far more in this province than a tourist can see in one visit, and if the visitors are given good service, I think they'll come back to see it."

Jackie McLeod Coach-Manager Of Canadian Club

MELVILLE, Sask. (UPI)—Former National Hockey League player Jackie McLeod of Moose Jaw, Sask., has been signed as coach-manager of Canada's national team that will compete in the 1968 world tournament in Yugoslavia next March.

McLeod turned professional with the New York Rangers in 1949 after completing his junior hockey career with Moose Jaw Canucks. In 10 years of professional hockey, he played two full seasons and three part seasons with the Rangers.

Other pro experience was with Cincinnati of the American Hockey League, and Saskatoon, Vancouver and Calgary of the Western League.

The new national team coach was re-instated as an amateur by the CCHA in the fall of 1960 and since then has played senior hockey in Saskatchewan, and participated in three world tournaments and an international exhibition tour of Europe.

McLeod played with the Trail Smoke Eaters when they won the world title for Canada, in 1963 when they lost to Russia, and also for Galt Terriers when they represented Canada in the world classic at Colorado Springs in 1962. He was a member of the Saskatoon Quakers when they toured Europe in 1962.

Last season McLeod coached the Moose Jaw Canucks of the Saskatchewan Junior League.

Win Buttons
Valda Riffings and Kay Robinson won the Women's Senior Golf Association prize at Colwood Monday by beating Margaret Thompson and Lottie Williams.

Pro Victory To Wakeham At Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—Bill Wakeham of Calgary registered a 36-hole score of 140 Monday to capture the Alberta assistant professional golfers' competition over 17 rivals.

Wakeham, former Victoria amateur who represented British Columbia in interprovincial competition as a member of the Willingdon Cup team, fired 68 in the first round and 72 in the second.

Don Drever of Edmonton was second with 151 on scores of 75 and 76. Ed Hughes of Calgary tied Don Buchanan and Dick Bird of Edmonton at 153 and Bill Quilley of Calgary had 153. The victory was worth $150 to Wakeham.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Spring salmon fishing has been in a sharp decline so far this year, but it might be just a late season. King Fisherman Contest spring salmon entries started to pick up last week after a slow start. Commercial salmon fishing statistics showed a similar trend.

For the first time in many weeks, commercial spring salmon landings in the Vancouver-Victoria-Victoria area, for the week ending July 10, showed an increase over the same week for last year. . . 21,000 pounds of red spring, compared to 20,000 pounds last year; 20,000 pounds of white spring, compared to 18,000 pounds last year; 140,000 pounds of mixed spring, compared to 118,000 last year. But, coho landings were down to 720,000 pounds, compared to 808,000 last year.

For week ending July 3 the picture was reversed. . . 16,000 pounds of red spring, compared to 25,000 pounds last year in same week; 3,000 pounds of red spring compared to 4,000 last year; and 101,000 pounds of mixed spring compared to 181,000 last year. Coho were down to 198,000 pounds, compared to 443,000 pounds last year.

Go back a few weeks and the picture looks even worse. For week ending June 19 . . . 2,000 pounds of red spring compared to 22,000 last year for same week; 300 pounds of white spring, compared to 4,000 last year; 88,000 pounds of mixed spring, compared to 193,000 last year; and only 27,000 pounds of coho compared to 218,000 pounds last year.

The coho catch was down because of the new late opening in Gulf of Georgia, July 1 instead of June 15, and this late opening has apparently paid off in some excellent coho fishing for sports anglers.

But, the spring salmon situation is something for great concern.

It could be poor weather that has reduced the fishing time or it could be a sad lack of salmon. Most likely it is both.

With all salmon fishing stopped for two months last winter, spring salmon fishing could have been expected to be much better than usual.

King Fisherman spring salmon entries are down this year to 373 in June, compared to 708 in June last year and 1,196 in June 1963. In May spring salmon entries were down to 196, compared with 378 last year and 601 in 1963.

Coho entries are up to 877 for June, compared to 674 last year and 130 in 1963.

With the spring salmon catches obviously dwindling year by year we wonder if it might not be a good idea to create some drastic conservation measures by cutting back the start of the commercial fishing season until the coho season starts, instead of having fishermen fish early for springs and have to throw the coho back.

All commercial fishing will be banned this year from Oct. 1 to April 14 in Campbell River to William Head waters and from Nov. 1 to April 14 in Juan de Fuca Strait. But coho won't re-open until June 15 in Juan de Fuca and July 1 in Gulf of Georgia.

This throwing back of coho shakers is of serious concern to all fishermen. The commercial fishermen hate to do it. Some would like to see the coho season start earlier, so their won't be the wanton kill of coho shakers.

But, other commercial fishermen feel that spring salmon fishing in the early season results in only pretty hard-earned wages, and sometimes not that. They have indicated they would be content with a later season, but if others start fishing early they have to meet the competition.

It boils down to too many fishermen trying to make a living from too few fish.

Sportsmen have taken their cut, to four from an eight fish limit, which should be some measure of conservation, but conservation must come where the big catches are made . . . from the commercial fishermen.

Sports fishing guides of Campbell River and Stuart Island are alarmed at new federal fisheries regulations which definitely forbid sale of salmon taken by sport fishing in tidal waters.

It has been regular practice for guides to sell the gifts from tourists who are not interested, or simply cannot be bothered to take their fish home with them.

The guides ask the fisheries department to license guides, and in so doing, permit the guides to sell fish given to them by tourists.

They fear that many fish caught by guests at various hotels and lodges in the area will otherwise go to waste. They also point out that in the past guides have augmented their income by 20 to 30 per cent through the sale of fish . . . and many of the guides are university students trying to pay their way through school. They point out other anglers can still pay a $1 commercial fishing license and then sell their fish.

The guides have valid enough arguments and the 75 to 100 fish they sell collectively each year from the Campbell River tree pool probably wouldn't affect conservation very much, but we can't on one hand ask for restrictions for conservation on commercial fishermen and then support appeals for special considerations for sports fishermen.

Putter fishermen in the Greater Victoria area are circulating a petition to protest the up-coming weekend commercial fishing closure for pinkies and sockeye, which would affect them . . . and we can't support that either.

Kappless Lions Just a Dud Fail to Score in Montreal

MONTREAL—B.C. Lions went out Tuesday night to find out just how they might fare if they were ever forced to play without Joe Kapp. They discovered it was a horrible thought.

Kapp sat on the sidelines throughout as the Grey Cup champions engaged Montreal Alouettes in the second exhibition game of the upcoming football season for each club. No employee anywhere has more job security.

Standby quarterback Mel Melin was at the controls most of the way, relieved briefly by Roger Hardy, ex-UBC signal caller. Neither could get an attack going and the punchless second and fourth quarters and received assurance that Bernie Faloney is still a fine quarterback.

STILL AT IT
Faloney played the first three quarters, and put the Alouettes on the scoreboard with an eight-play sequence which covered 67 yards.

Biggest gain was a 25-yard pass to Ernie White. After full-back Nat Craddock had bulled his way to within 20 yards, Faloney hit and Mike Gibbons with a pass which brought the ball within six yards. Faloney picked up one on a keeper, then passed to Canadian full-back Dave Brown for the score.

WASN'T SCARY
Melin and Hardy completed only eight of 23 pass attempts and with no one adequately replacing Lennie Dennis, retired offensive tackle, the B.C. ground game was something less than ominous.

But coach Dave Skene, although his club trailed only by 6-0 until the last minute of play, continued to experiment as he tried to find a halfback partner for Fleming and a tackle to replace Dennis.

STILL UNSEEN
There appeared to be no success on either count. Amos Bullock, who had been favored to partner Fleming, couldn't be broken loose. Best effort by B.C. halfback was the punt returning of Lou Holland. Writers picked Canadian halfback Bill Lasserter, being groomed as a corner line-backer, as the best of the Lions. Able to stop the Melin-led attack, the Alouettes scored in the eighth.

Lions blocked the convert and, roused, showed some authority on defence. But they couldn't get an attack going and the Alouettes made sure in the last minute when George Bark, who quarterbacked the last quarter, tried Bill Dewley in the end zone with a 23-yard pass.

The pass was short and a defending back gathered it in. However, he failed to hold it and the ball dropped into the arms of Dewley as he lay stretched out on his back. Alouettes made 13 first downs, completing 16 of 27 passes for 172 yards and getting 73 on the ground with Faloney as their biggest gainer with 24 yards in three carries.

Hamilton Agrees Thornton Will Do

WINNIPEG — Dick Thornton, who leads his best quarterback Winnipeg Blue Bombers have got, did his best to prove the point here last night.

Thornton was at quarterback most of the way as the Bombers shunned Hamilton Tiger-Cats, 25-0, in their exhibition football game, and the former North-western all-American had himself quite a night.

He set up the first Bomber touchdown with a 63-yard end sweep before lateralizing to half-back Dave Ramsey for the major. A 17-yard run by Thornton set up a field goal, and the second touchdown came after a 30-yard pass from Thornton to Billy Cooper. Art Perkins scored it on a one-yard plunge.

Thornton, who has spent his four years with Bombers as a defensive halfback, was an all-star at that position in 1963, but broke his leg early last season.

His defensive play has kept coach Bud Grant from giving him a full shot at offense, particularly with Kenny Pion there to quarterback. Thornton has often demanded a shot at the job.

Last night he gained 70 yards on 11 carries before giving way late in the fourth quarter to Canadian Brian Palmer.

Palmer threw a 30-yard pass to Canadian end Jack Robinson for Bombers' last touchdown after Ernie Pitts, switched to defensive half, intercepted a Joe Zuger pass at midfield.

Robinson also kicked field goals of 35 and 18 yards, and converted one touchdown.

Ti-Cats, playing their first exhibition game to Winnipeg's third, never really got started. Zuger and Frank Cosentino, fighting for the quarterback slot left by the absence of Bernie Faloney, could never rally the offense of the eastern champions, who were outscored 23 yards to 65 and outpassed 172 yards to 62.

Yankoski Fills In To Fill Out Staff

Yankoski struck out 10 and walked only one. Brian Harvey, batting ninth in the Transports' order, drove in four runs with a sacrifice fly and a three-run double in the seventh. Jim Houghton added a three-run, inside-the-park homer in the eighth.

Yankoski ran his record to 3-0 last night at Royal Athletic Park as Transports beat Independents, 16-4. Three of the four hits he gave up were scratch singles, and until Jerry McAdam's two-out single in the ninth, only one ball had been hit out of the infield.

Prospects Still Dim On Football Telecasts

TORONTO (CP)—Prospects remained slim today that Canadian Football League games will be televised this season as the country's two television networks and a Montreal agency holding the TV rights failed to reach agreement.

'Terrible' Says Herb

MONTREAL (CP)—Herb Capson, general manager of the Western Conference British Columbia Lions, said Tuesday it would be a "terrible thing" if Canadian Football League games are not televised this season.

Capson said he feels that all concerned, including the rights holders, the TV networks and the league should get together to reach an agreement.

He said football has become something of a national institution and that there would be "the same outcry" if hockey was not televised.

Mountie Pair Given Chance

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City Athletics of baseball's American League said today they have purchased right-handed pitcher Jack Aker and outfielder Jose Tabataba from their Vancouver farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

General manager Hank Peters said the Athletics assigned outfielder Nelson Mathews outright to Vancouver and optioned pitcher Jess Hickman to the club to make room on the roster.

TOURISTS GET MORE

Tourists in Yugoslavia get a special exchange rate of 1,000 dinars to the dollar instead of 750 dinars.

to settle TV terms with the CBC and CTV networks.

The Montreal firm paid $250,000 for rights to televise Eastern Conference games and $250,000 for Western Conference games.

But it has also been called on—and has refused—to pay the costs of production and line charges for the televised games, approximately $1,500,000.

TV officials said Monday in a statement that because time is running out prior to the July 30 opening of the CFL season, alternate programming has been planned in case an agreement is not reached.

'CAN'T DELIVER'

R. G. Walker, general manager of the CBC, said the Montreal firm "paid far too much." He said the sponsors aren't there, so the agency cannot deliver.

"No one is going to bail out the agency. We advised them from the start that the figures were unreasonable. It appears there probably will be no football on the networks this season."

An agency spokesman said in an interview with The Globe and Mail Monday that the networks are taking advantage of a monopoly.

"They are supposed to be competitors but aren't when it comes to football," the newspaper quotes him as saying.

Reference was made to a 1962 agreement between the networks to share CFL telecasts.

DISCOUNT REFUSED

"A sponsor would have to buy stations on both networks," the agency spokesman added. "That means overlapping coverage. We felt we were entitled to a discount. This was refused."

"After signing their monopoly agreement in 1962, they tried to get the Grey Cup game for $25,000 less than it sold for the previous year."

The 1962 Grey Cup rights went for $175,000 and the 1963 rights for $165,000.

The spokesman said his agency is willing to sell the 1963 schedule rights at cost, foregoing the 15 per cent agency commission.

CTV president Spencer Caldwell denied the 1962 agreement was a monopoly.

"It was the only way to solve the problems which came to a head in 1962. The agreement had nothing to do with prices."

New Record

HMCS Naden Theft Hearing

One Box of Film Drawn Says Navy Technician

A navy photographer drew only one box of film from stores at HMCS Naden, but a receipt showed he had drawn 10 boxes. Esquimalt magistrate's court was told Tuesday.

The receipt, officially known as a transaction voucher, was entered as an exhibit Tuesday, the second day of the preliminary hearing into charges involving alleged misuse of navy photographic materials.

Lieut. Eric Haywood, 2150 Al-lenby, and Charles Whyte, 8034 East Saanich, face four charges of fraud and one of theft over $50.

STORES CHIEF

Lieut. Haywood is former head of the Naden photographic department. Whyte, a civilian em-ployee, was in charge of stores.

Both were transferred to other departments in Naden when an RCMP investigation into the al-lleged incidents, said to have occurred between Aug. 1, 1963, and Oct. 13, 1964, began last fall.

Tuesday a Naden photog-rapher, Able Seaman Wayne Buck, described his procedure of ob-taining film from the stores.

SIGNS VOUCHER

He said he usually drew four boxes of film at a time. Whyte would make out a voucher dur-ing the transaction and sign it.

Crown prosecutor Kenneth Murphy then showed AS Buck a voucher, dated July 2, 1963, according to which he had drawn 10 boxes of film that day.

Buck said he had in fact drawn only one box of film. "If you draw ten, it's for a heavy assignment," he explained, adding that he had not had a heavy assignment on that date.

Plane Crash Starts Fire

LIVERPOOL, England (Reut-ers) — A Viscount airliner plunged into a chemical plant as it came into land here Tues-day night, killing its crew of two and starting a blaze at the factory.

Two girls working at the fac-tory were unaccounted for, but a fire department spokesman said they may not have been in the building when the plane struck it.

Robbery Suspects Under Arrest

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Three men carrying travellers' cheques police said were stolen in a multi-million dollar bank robbery last April were charged here Tuesday with pos-session of stolen goods.

A fourth man, arrested Mon-day night at Buffalo Raceway in Hamburg, N.Y., was charged there with second-degree for-ery.

The arrests were made after a teller at the raceway spotted a traveller's cheque carried the serial number of one of the $56,000 worth stolen from the Royal Bank of Canada's branch in Montreal's Van Horn shopping centre April 11-12.

SUICIDE THREAT

Eugene Rasku, 47, of Mon-treal, one of the three men ar-rested in a hotel here early Tuesday, held a pistol to his head for three hours while po-lice and a Roman Catholic priest, Rev. Leo Murray of Fort Erie, talked him out of pulling the trigger.

Also taken into custody were Bernard Rosen, 40, of Montreal and Sam Kroiter, 34, of Tuo-neck, N.J. All were remanded in custody until July 27.

Forest Fires

New Rain Lowers Hazard

An overnight rain Monday reduced the fire hazard almost to the vanishing point through-out the Vancouver fire district, which includes Vancouver Is-land.

A public information officer for the forest service said that "the whole province looks pretty good, for that matter, with the exception of a south-ern part of the Kamloops dis-trict where the rating is still high."

There were only 12 new fires since Monday, and there were no fires at all in the Prince George and Prince Rupert dis-tricts.

All 145 fires still burning in the province were being kept under control.

A total of 22 of these fires are in the Vancouver district, which includes Vancouver Is-land. None is considered seri-ous.

The fire hazard rating for the Vancouver district is classi-fied as low.

Atomic Spies In Space

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The United States sent a pair of satellite scouts speeding one-quarter of the way to the moon Tuesday to reinforce America's watch for sneak nuclear tests in space.

The twin space sentinels were orbited along with a midjet moonlet in a three-in-one shot that marked the 15th anniver-sary of the first rocket launch here on July 24, 1950.

Each of the 324-pound watch-dog satellites carries its own rocket motor, a unique gas-electric manoeuvring jet and a battery of eyes and sensors to watch for tell-tale signs of radiation from nuclear explo-sions.

The two atomic detectives were operating as planned as they sped away from earth, but faced a series of space acro-batics before joining four other nuclear detection satellites already patrolling space for vio-lations of the limited test ban treaty signed by the U.S. and Russia two years ago.

In addition, they are charged with stealing photographic paper worth more than $50 from naval stores between March 7 and March 9, 1963.

Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre is counsel for Haywood, while W. E. Whitley represents Whyte.

Pollution Hearing Soon?

By IAN SMITH

It may be one or two months before a hearing is held on the Saanich application to dump treated effluent into Colquitz Creek, if any hearing is neces-sary.

The hearing, before the lieutenant-governor-in-council, will be in the form of appeals by Greater Victoria groups and residents against the ruling by the Pollution Control Board that Saanich could discharge 35,000 gallons per day of treated effluent into the creek, and thence into the Gorge, from its Northridge subdivi-sion.

WITHDRAWN

A similar application for a 90,000-gallon-a-day discharge from a retarded children's hos-pital is to be withdrawn by the provincial public works de-partment when details of a sewer hookup are completed.

There was widespread public outcry against the Saanich plan at the time the applica-tion was made and also since the Pollution Control Board made its decision.

COUPLE OF MONTHS

The outcry resulted in the appeal, but deputy provincial secretary Laurie Wallace told the Colonist Tuesday that it may be "a couple of months" before a hearing is set.

"You'll hear about it when we set a date," he said.

Residents attacked the two applications on the following grounds:

1. The fact that effluent treated or not, acts as fine fertilizer for the algae that now clogs the Gorge and Portage Inlet.

2. The danger of virus infec-tion from treated effluent, since treatment is not 100 per cent effective.

3. The psychological danger that people will regard the Gorge as a recreational area if it is used as a sewage dump.

Formed in an effort to oppose the applications was the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterways Association, whose members have often said that no action should be taken by Saanich until results of the district sewerage survey are in.

SIMILAR ACTION

After Public Works Minister Chant indicated he would with-draw his application in connec-tion with the retarded children's hospital, members of the water-ways association called for a similar action by Saanich.

But no answer has been forth-coming.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said only that "the situation is under re-view," but he refuses to confirm or deny that a hearing will be necessary.

Pony Owner Must Pay Damages

A pony's owner has been ordered to pay damages to a driver who crashed his car into a ditch after swerving to avoid the animal on Sooke Road.

Driver and owner of the car at the time of the accident last September was Victoria lawyer Louis Lindholm, 2670 Beach Drive. Judgment in his favor was made in county court by Judge Montague Tyrwhitt-Drake.

He ordered Robert Richardson, 2862 Sooke Road, to pay damages totalling $1,141.

Judge Drake said in his decision there was a sharp conflict of facts "as to the tethering or otherwise of the horse on the defendant's land."

But, he added, the animal was undoubtedly straying on the road and there was no question that "its presence was what brought about the accident."

Injured Woman Now Improving

A woman whose car crashed in a ditch Monday is in satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Saanich police say Mrs. Carol Mills of 721 Lily apparently lost control of the car she was driving at Greenridge Crescent and Saanich Road and ended in the ditch.

Hold Back for December Votes

Solid Civic Front Asks Regional Delay

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

Presenting a solid front to officials of the provincial department of municipal affairs, civic leaders urged Tuesday that the whole question of a capital city regional district be postponed until election time in December.

The 60-day period of decision, specified in the provincial outline of the plan, is far too short, district leaders told departmental spokesmen James D. Baird who was acting at the conference in the absence of the minister Dan Campbell and his deputy, J. Everett Brown.

By the provisions of the scheme, as outlined in a provincial memorandum to participating municipalities, there are three choices.

A municipality may accept all or part of the plan by action of council; it may take no action, or a referendum on the issue may be put to the people within 60 days from July 13.

In the event of no action the municipality will be included in the regional district by order-in-council.

"It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of all the municipal representatives that this whole issue should be delayed until the next municipal elections," said Mayor Wilson.

"At this time of year there just wouldn't be the turnout at the polls and, furthermore, there are several things about the whole plan which need clarification. It just isn't the right time of year," he added.

Too Important to Rush

Most representatives were agreed that the principle of the regional district is sound but it was far too important a matter to be hurried, civic leaders said.

"There should be a time for education and information of the voters. They have to be told what this is all about before they can vote intelligently. And not only that but they have to be here to vote and many of them will be out of town if the vote is called within 30 days," said Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

He added that although the conference was amiable and informative Tuesday it was indecisive because of the absence of the minister.

The possibility of a favorable decision on the part of the ratepayers—a decision, that is, in favor of joining the regional district—was much more likely if the whole issue was delayed until election time, said Reeve Hugh Curtis, of Saanich.

"It would be fairer all around and I am confident that the minister will find a way to accede to our request," Reeve Curtis said.

There were several aspects of the plan, as presented, badly in need of clarification, said Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay.

Policy Declaration

Ratepayers were being asked to vote on cost participation rather than function or principle in some aspects of the scheme, said Reeve Cox, and this probably was not the minister's intent at all.

It was conceivable, as the scheme stands, that a municipality could vote against participating in the cost of a regional service and yet, like it or not, be incorporated.

"What I would like to see is a specific declaration of government policy on this issue," the reeve said.

He emphasized, as did Reeve Curtis, that he favored the principle of the regional district. There would have to be some

Murder Hearing Set for July 27

NANAIMO — Cosmos Johnson, Tahsis, will face a preliminary hearing on a non-capital murder charge here July 27.

Mayor and Reeves Will Advise Votes

Mayor Wilson of Victoria, Reeve Cox of Oak Bay, Reeve Wurtele of Esquimalt and Reeve Curtis of Saanich all said Tuesday they intended to recommend to their councils that referendums be held on the question of participation in a capital city regional district.

In each case, they said, they felt the matter was of such vital and lasting importance to their municipalities that they believed there should be an expression of opinion on the part of the ratepayers.

City Hall Complex Bought, Paid For

With the final payment of $5,414 ordered Tuesday by the Centennial Square Committee, city hall will be bought and paid for. Total cost—$639,922.

This includes renovation of the old building and construction of the new two-storey addition which includes the legislative wing, council chamber, aldermen's offices and associated rooms.

ABOVE TENDER

The amount paid to G. H. Wheaton Limited, will be about $2,000 above the tender price for the complex, City Manager Dennis Young told aldermen. This was accounted for by some structural changes.

In each case, said Mr. Young, the contractor was authorized to make the alterations although it was a bit hazy as to just who provided the authorization.

WINDOW JOB

One "less than satisfactory" job which was done on the third floor of the old building, said

Mr. Young, was the putting of windows.

A price was given for reglazing windows on this storey but it was decided that re-putting was all that was needed.

NOT SATISFACTORY

The city's architectural consultant has assured the city that the job was satisfactory, said Mr. Young.

City Engineer James Garnett did not agree.

"It is not a good job. A pane of glass fell out recently and could have injured someone below. It will mean that city maintenance staff will have to take over and do the job—possibly at a greater expense than it could have been done earlier," he said.

FOR CITY STAFF

Ald. Cecil Parrott agreed that it might well end up as a job for the city staff.

A final payment of $5,000 for the contract on the original part of McPherson Playhouse, exclusive of scene left and restaurant, was ordered made.

New Hats Humane Way To Stop Women Talking!

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Hat designers appeared Monday to have succeeded where husbands have failed for years—they've created a humane way of stopping a woman from talking.

At a show of autumn and winter headgear, the Incorporated Society of London Fashion Designers produced two dazzling mazzamas for ladies.

Intentional or otherwise, these two hats would seem to make conversation extremely difficult, if not impossible, of the wearer. The owners might balk—but it's highly doubtful she would be heard.

Muffler No. 1 was modelled by Barbara Bacher. The top part was of pastel pink and the bottom part—covering the mouth—of thick brown velvet, a western adaptation of the eastern yashmak.

Once she got the hat off Barbara was asked if she felt inhibited conversationwise.

"Definitely," was her reply.

Muffler No. 2 was called Turkish Delight. Fashioned in thick printed brocade, the top portion resembled a pointed German helmet of the First World War. To this was attached a yashmak that fell to the wearer's shoulders, a real silencer if you ever saw one.

The question remains, of course, will women pay money for a style that will eliminate oral communication? Or, should a husband buy one, will his mate wear it?

Not to be outdone by the pretty mazzamas, designer Simone Mirman showed a black velvet beret-like hat. There was no yashmak, but the hat had startling eye-shaped patterns in the back. Seen from behind, the wearer looked like a no-nosed black panther walking on hind feet—backwards.

Peek-a-Boo, Either Way You Look at It: Hat designer Simone Mirman introduced these eye-catching designs at a showing of women's headgear in London today. At left is a black velvet hood-like concoction with eye-shaped patterns in the back of the head. Design at right is called Turkish Delight, a western adaptation of the eastern yashmak, a veil worn by Muslim women.—(AP Wirephoto by cable from London)

Marriage Rate Up In United States

By PATRICK McDERMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—Dan Capri's marksmanship improved in 1964.

His romantic arrows started affairs that ended in 4.5 per cent more marriages nationwide than during the previous year.

In fact, the 1,731,000 marriages last year added up to a marriage rate ranked as the highest since 1956.

Statistics from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. report that an increase in marriages started in the spring of 1963 and picked up steam after September of that year. The reason? Married men were deferred from the draft.

"However, the upsurge appears to have ended last October," the statisticians said. "Through the early months of 1965, only small increases have occurred."

Each of the states in this area reported a greater rise than did the nation as a whole. Pennsylvania, with an increase of 12.7 per cent, topped every other state.

The Pacific division—Washington, Oregon, California, Alaska, Hawaii—also turned in an above-average increase in weddings in '64. The statisticians said this was due to the 8.3 per cent growth in marriages in California.

The tiniest relative increase in weddings last year occurred in the New England States—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut.

In these states the record fell below that for the United States as a whole; in Massachusetts marriages declined.

Other states recording a decrease: Arkansas, Montana. The District of Columbia also experienced a decline having a 4.8 per cent fewer marriages than during '63.

The statisticians noted that in the major cities of the U.S., as a group, the rise in marriages last year was 3.2 per cent, somewhat smaller than that for the nation as a whole.

All of the five largest cities reported a rise in marriages. The increases ranged from less than one per cent in Philadelphia to about 10 per cent in the Detroit area.

In Reno and Las Vegas—two places where marriage parlors operate—the increases were moderate—five and four per cent, respectively.

In a marriage parlor a couple can have a no-fuss wedding at almost anytime of the day or night. Even flowers and witnesses are supplied, if needed.

Plan Show In Fall

GANGES, B.C.—A combined flower and vegetable show at Fultford Hall about the middle of September was planned at the recent meeting of the Salt Spring Island Chrysanthemum Society and Garden Club. There will be side features such as a plant and vegetable stall, which will be sold at reasonable prices. Tea will be served in the lower hall.

Handsome trophies will be awarded to show winners and the Perpetual Challenge Trophy of the Farmer's Institute will be awarded for the best vegetable collection. New members are invited to enter exhibits for the fall show.

The meeting took place at the charming ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fendall, nestled on a mountain side below Maxwell Lake. What was intended as a picnic supper turned out to be a smorgasbord dinner and a "savoury" delight for nearly 80 members who spent part of the time roaming through the garden admiring such specimens as the Tamarix and Smoke Tree. It was decided to cancel the August meeting. Next meeting to be held on Sept. 8 prior to the show.

Loube-Lawford

Grandfather Decorated Cake Topped by Gold Anchor

A pretty wedding was solemnized recently in All Saints' Anglican Church, View Royal, when Heather Maureen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas C. Lawford of Highland Boulevard, Nanaimo, became the bride of Sub-Lieut. Jeffrey Norman Loube, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. N. Loube of Wyoming, Ont.

Rev. John Vickers read the marriage service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in white embroidered and appliqued organza over tulle with a full-length skirt, designed with scoop neckline and long short sleeves.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white double gladiolus entwined with ivy and lime ribbon. She wore an antique cameo which was 170 years old. The bride's veil, tiered and scalloped, was held by baby organza roses and tulle of the valley.

Mrs. Kenneth Hower, matron of honor, wore a gown of green-blue chrysanthemum with little lace jacket and carried a circular bouquet of white chrysanthemums, fern and blue ribbons. She wore a matching headpiece.

Miss Susan Loube, sister of the groom and junior bridesmaid, chose a gown of pink chrysanthemum with lace jacket and matching headpiece. Her bouquet was tied with pink ribbon.

Sub-Lieut. Darryl Obe of HMCS Saskatchewan was best man. Ushers were Sub-Lieut. Michael Saker and Sub-Lieut. Peter Child.

At the reception at the Old England Inn, the wedding cake was topped by a white and gold anchor and was cut with an antique Royal Navy sword.

Toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, Mr. Gordon Nichols of Victoria. The cake was decorated by Mr. A. C. Fleming, the bride's grandfather.

For a honeymoon in the Eastern United States and Canada, the new Mrs. Loube changed into a linen dress with white accessories and wore a hat of pink tulle.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. Roger Clark, West Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. R. Fisher of Salt Spring Island; Mr. and Mrs. G. Shrimpton of Nanaimo; Duffield of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. McGregor of Port Alberni; Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Atkinson of Port Alberni; Mrs. Ann Reynolds of Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. P. Loube of Port Alberni; Mrs. Kenneth Hower of West

Church Booklet Ready Soon

GANGES, B.C.—The St. Mark's Church Guild met at the home of the president, Mrs. Cecil Springfield recently when Dr. R. B. Horsfield opened the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Springfield told the Guild that publication of the booklet of the history of St. Mark's Church is imminent. This is the Guild's most important project of the year and it is hoped it will be of great interest to all St. Mark's Islanders. A grateful Guild gave Mr. John Rhodes Sturdy, the author of the booklet, a gift as a small token of their appreciation.

The coming Parish Fete at Harbour House on July 28 was discussed.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My mother-in-law doesn't like to write letters. She puts everything on postal cards and I do mean everything. Unfortunately, our mailman has a very big mouth. There is no such thing as a secret in this town.

A few weeks ago my mother-in-law sent the following message on a card: "It's too bad the bank turned down your loan. I wish I could send you the money but I can't right now. If you would like to speak to your Uncle Leonard I will. You did repay the money you borrowed from him to buy a car, didn't you?"

I boiled for weeks over that one. My husband said I was "sensitive."

This morning I received a card from her which said: "If you aren't having any success getting pregnant, Alice, why not talk to Martha. Maybe she will pass along some secret hints."

What do you think about this Ann? Any suggestions to cure her?—JUST BURNING.

Dear Just: Personal business should not be written on postal cards, even if your mailman has a small mouth.

Send your mother-in-law a box of self-addressed, stamped envelopes with cards inside and tell her you'd appreciate it if she'd use them.

Dear Ann Landers: Just keep up your nutty advice and you will be responsible for breaking up 10,000 more homes in Wayne County.

What do you mean by telling women they shouldn't have to clean the fish and fowl their husbands bring home—unless they want to?

Most women are downright lazy today, thanks to the new inventions. They are fat as snow and just as energetic. They don't even hang out the wash anymore what with machines that blow dry everything.

My mother was happy when Pa brought home anything he could trap, shoot or hook. It was a whole winter's groceries. Women like you are ruining our civilization. I say we'd all be better off if we went back to the stream, the field and the tree.—SIGN ME SAM.

Dear Sam: O.K. Go back to the tree, but don't try to take the whole world with you.

Dear Ann Landers: To be honest I don't know if I am justified in being upset with my mother, or, if I am being "adolescent" as she says.

I am almost 17 years old and have been going with a wonderful fellow who is now in the East taking summer courses at a university. He writes me twice a week. Ron (not his real name) is a poet. He has written some romantic poems just for me. I think they are the most sensitive and exquisite words I have ever read.

I learned this afternoon that my mother read several of Ron's poems to her Ladies Aid when they met at our home last week.

When I told Mother I was shocked she said, "I thought the poems were so beautiful I wanted the ladies to hear them. Beautiful things should be shared. They belong to the world." I cannot be objective about my feelings but I am disappointed, angry and resentful. Comment please.—J.

Dear J. Your mother had no right to invade your privacy. The poetry was written for you and not for the world, or the Ladies Aid.

You realize, of course, that your mother was showing you off. Understanding her motives should make you less angry and resentful, but what she did was wrong, wrong, wrong.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Ahrens To Live in Everson, Wash.

GANGES — Ganges United Church was the scene of a lovely summer wedding, Saturday, when Elizabeth Josephine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. A. Reid, Ganges, became the bride of Mr. Edmund Spencer Ahrens, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Ahrens, Everson, Wash.

Rev. A. E. King of Metropolitan United Church, Victoria, officiated at the ceremony. Colorful "mixed" summer flowers were used to decorate the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride was a picture in her floor-length classic gown of white Chantilly lace in lovers knot design over tulle, fitted bodice, scalloped neck line and lily point sleeves. Her chapel train was edged with French scalloped lace. A seed pearl and rhinestone tiara held her elbow length nylon tulle veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of pale pink veronica, Rapture roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Reid, sister of the bride, bridesmaid Mrs. R. W. Cannon, Seattle, Wash., and bridesmaid Miss Sandra Ahrens, niece of the groom, were charming in identical floor-length A-line classic gowns of rose pink peau de soie with Empire waist lines. The maid of honor wore a short French embroidered lace jacket with her ensemble.

Their headdresses were matching rose flowers of the same material with small whimsy veils. They carried cascade bouquets of blue daisies and shaded pink carnations.

Mr. David Larson, Seattle, brother-in-law of the groom was the best man, and the ushers were Gerald Dahle, Blaine, Wash., and Edmund Nelson, Linden, Wash.

Stuart Reid of Edmonton sang the Lord's Prayer. Miss Shirley Cannon was organist.

The reception was held at the Salt Spring Island Golf and Country Club, where summer flowers were arranged artistically throughout the reception room. The three tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, and surrounded by three miniature white wedding bells and lilacs-of-the-valley, held the place of honor on the bride's table. White roses decorated tapers, made by the bride, were in white holders.

The toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, Mr. R. L. McLeod, Calgary.

Wigs Are Big This Year And So Is Jewelry

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Always important in fashion are the accessories—hats, jewelry, shoes, belts, furs and now—wigs. Some seasons one accessory has even overshadowed the clothes. But this fall, they all merge into the Total Look.

The Total Look was apparent in many capsule showings viewed by editors attending the fall fashions of the New York Couture Group.

Hats fit perfectly into this emphasis on co-ordination. They definitely aren't the towering and massive creations of several seasons ago. Instead, they complement the soft feminine mood of the clothes.

THIS IS NEWS

However, the real fashion news is not in one silhouette but in the back treatment where drapery and bows challenge attention. Bows may be small or even nestle under a back fold at the nape of the neck, as Sally Victor likes to manipulate her. Other bows stand up, boldly demanding, at the back of small calot styles.

WIGS ARE BIG

Wigs have almost become part of the hat story. Many now substitute for the cocktail or restaurant hat. Fleischer's of New York have even created a wig to achieve the two-tone hair effect that, until now, was streaked in by hair coloring. Your own hair is pulled through the wig slits, to brush in with the contrast wig shade.

Jewelry, too, falls into the feminine mood. Gold necklaces are newly v-shaped and flat, to be worn with slim and collarless and slim uncluttered dresses. There's even an interesting necklace duplication of the muffled scarf and high-rising collar motif. Golden multi-chain rise high to adorn the throat.

The one-bare-shoulder and the strapless evening gowns, now in the fashion limelight, practically demand long drop earrings and no other distracting jewelry. In fact, there are more chandelier earrings than has been seen for some time.

Jewelry complements fall colors. Gold bamboo necklaces are combined with jet to be worn with helges and browns. Silver is important with the greys high in the fashions spectrum. The return of dress sleeves and the prediction of short gloves for fall add up to more bracelets.

SHOES IN HARMONY

Shoes also are in harmony and balance with the rest of your wardrobe. The open look continues from spring but decoration, rather than cut-outs, is the new focus. There are straps of every type, ties and buckles. The latter is probably the most important single ornament.

Heels continue to decrease. What was a medium height several seasons ago now is considered high. Spikes are reserved for formal occasions. But even then, lower and shaped heels are more popular. Day-time heels are chunky, just as many bracelets are, as a complementary contrast to the slim and fluid clothes.

The trend in toes is toward the slightly blunted look of ballet slippers in everything from mod to evening styles. You'll also find that the more bunty the toes, the lower the heel. Shoes also have great fabric interest this fall. Unexpected textures and color combinations crop up, as an ostrich leather shoe with satin ties.

Boots have passed the fad stage. Knees have made them classics. The newest length barely reaches the calf, to show off the curve of leg to-and-above the knee. Above-the-ankle dressy velvet shoes, sporting almost spike heels, are an odd reversal of the heel mood. They are, however, in the elegant tradition of the old carriage boot of fond memories.

Easy to make—good to eat—they go right along with the fun. Enjoy tasty, satisfying sandwiches.

The sign of delicious, nutritious bakery products.

U.K. Plans Red Tape Dispenser

LONDON (Reuters) — The complex of grey, grubby, soot-stained British ministerial offices known as Whitehall — once the heart of an empire and now the centre of the Commonwealth — is to be redeveloped for the first time in 500 years.

The government accepted in principle Monday a comprehensive plan to free the downtown London area's choked streets of traffic and transform Parliament Square into a precinct modeled on a college quadrangle.

King Henry VII was the last man to attempt to plan Whitehall as a place from which to govern England.

Sir Leslie Martin, 56-year-old professor of architecture at Cambridge University, and Prof. Colin Buchanan, Britain's leading town planner and traffic expert, have launched a fresh attempt in a minutely detailed 170-page report.

Their ideas will take at least 50 years to unfold, although Charles Pannell, the minister of public buildings and works, said detailed planning will begin as soon as possible.

Whitehall today accommodates several thousand civil servants in 19 government buildings, all but one more than 50 years old. Thousands more government workers occupy 151 leased buildings.

The new Whitehall plan will concentrate them all in specially-designed space-saving offices.

Retirement Shunned By Famed Ballerina

VANCOUVER (CP) — Retirement? At 46?

Not Dame Margot Fonteyn, whose interpretation of a 14-year-old Juliet has won accolades from North American ballet critics.

"I never make plans for such things," she said Tuesday when asked if she would retire.

"In fact I never did have any plans to retire at any age. That was all just newspaper talk before, saying I would retire at 35."

"Maybe the newspapers had to say something about retirement because many people wanted to see me go."

Dame Margot is in Vancouver to dance her acclaimed Juliet opposite Rudolf Nureyev in Romeo and Juliet.

On Sunday Dame Margot will fly home to the side of her husband, Dr. Roberto Arias, who is recovering from bullet wounds suffered a year ago. The former Panamanian ambassador to Britain was shot down by political opponents in Panama last June.

"The tour has been wonderful," said Dame Margot, "but I so want to get home to my husband."

"He is mending slowly now and I hope to be able to take a holiday with him shortly after I get back to London."

"When he is well enough to take a longer journey, we plan to visit Panama again."

"Maybe the newspapers had to say something about retirement because many people wanted to see me go."

Dame Margot is in Vancouver to dance her acclaimed Juliet opposite Rudolf Nureyev in Romeo and Juliet.

On Sunday Dame Margot will fly home to the side of her husband, Dr. Roberto Arias, who is recovering from bullet wounds suffered a year ago. The former Panamanian ambassador to Britain was shot down by political opponents in Panama last June.

"The tour has been wonderful," said Dame Margot, "but I so want to get home to my husband."

"He is mending slowly now and I hope to be able to take a holiday with him shortly after I get back to London."

"When he is well enough to take a longer journey, we plan to visit Panama again."

Dame Margot Fonteyn, whose interpretation of a 14-year-old Juliet has won accolades from North American ballet critics.

"I never make plans for such things," she said Tuesday when asked if she would retire.

"In fact I never did have any plans to retire at any age. That was all just newspaper talk before, saying I would retire at 35."

Foreign Legion Traffic Haven

HEADLEY, England — Truck driver David Twichen always said traffic jams would drive him into the French Foreign Legion. But nobody believed him. Village police constable William Taylor even bet him $14 he'd never do it. Now it looks like he has.

A letter from 22-year-old Legionnaire 3rd Class Twichen addressed to the local court here pleaded guilty to three driving offences, including careless driving. The magistrates adjourned the case until Twichen appears in person.

Const. Taylor told the court Twichen's mother said her son had joined the legion for five years. He also said he refused to pay the $14 bet—until he sees Twichen in uniform.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Singer Keely Smith has married Los Angeles recording company executive Albert Bowen. The singer was divorced from band leader Louis Prima in 1961. Bowen was divorced in 1961.

HOLLYWOOD — Immortality, Hollywood version, came to Frank Sinatra when he wrote his signature beside his hand and foot prints in the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese theatre here. He thus became 150th celebrity to join a tradition that goes back to 1927 when Norma Talmadge accidentally stepped on a block of newly-poured cement while the theatre was being built.

BOURNEMOUTH, England — Police stopped David Newbury to tell him his car was spraying money all over the town. He found the $260 in takings from his restaurant which he'd stuffed into the trunk of the car had spread around town when the trunk lid failed to close properly.

Hillier's deputy, Martin Bor-

MANCHESTER, England — An anonymous bomb threat against Queen Elizabeth's husband, Prince Philip, sent police scurrying through a shoe factory he inspected during a visit to Manchester. No bomb was found.

MOSCOW — The British embassy has confirmed that Gerald Brooke, the London college lecturer held in jail here since April 25, is going on trial before the Moscow city court. Informed sources said the trial will last two days and that Brooke will plead guilty to "subversive activities against the Soviet state."

SALISBURY, England — "Human cannonball" Arturo Grice, 32, was killed here when he missed the net after being fired from a cannon. Circus manager E. Thompson said Grice, a Spaniard, had been doing the act for three years.

YORK, England — Archbishop of York Dr. Desald Coggan got closer to heaven — piloting a Royal Air Force jet fighter. "It is absolutely delightful," he said later.

EDINBURGH — Herbert May, well-known British sculptor and expert on ancient and modern metal work, has died at the age of 91.

DOVER, England — Bank clerk Robert Platten, 40, is heading across the English Channel bound for France—in a bottle, powered by a five horsepower motor. He has already crossed to France in a canoe, on a bedstead and in a barrel.

VISP, Switzerland — When a helicopter with a load of cables underneath took off, workman Michel Frossard took off with it—his foot caught in the cables. At 200 feet the pilot spotted his unwilling payload, dangling upside down. He carefully released Frossard and the cables in the Visp River. Michel was treated for shock.

LONDON — Chris Matthews has sold his George Medal for $420 and may have saved his marriage. He won the medal in 1956 for saving a life but debts caused a rift in his marriage. "I want to go back to Elleen as soon as possible and I promised I would settle my debts first," Matthews said. "Selling my medal is one way of doing this and it also proves my sincerity."

KELOWNA — This city has dropped its claim to have the name Grant MacDonachie for its airfield and will support a similar Vancouver application. City council two weeks ago empowered Mayor Dick Parkinson to ask Transport Minister Pickersall to establish here the name of the late president of Canadian Pacific Airlines.

LOS ANGELES — Mrs. Sharon Bites, 34, first woman to attempt to sail from here to Hawaii alone, has not been sighted for one month. She left Marina Del Rey with enough food and water for 70 days. There is no radio aboard her 25-foot Danish Folk boat. She estimated it would take 30 to 40 days to make the trip.

WOKING, England — Ten-year-old Paul Beard, who is very fond of peanuts, took a handful from a vending machine and got his hand stuck. Boy and machine were parted under anaesthetic at a local hospital.

LEICESTER, England — Mrs. Kathleen Flanagan was literally saved by the bell. She was about to light a kerosene heater in her home when firemen rang the doorbell — and explained she had been sold gasoline in error.

NORWICH, England — Former chef Alistair Campbell Smith figured the owners of the Anglian Grill here owed him a week's wages so he marched into the restaurant and ordered: turtle and sherry soup; hors d'oeuvres; steak, mushrooms, vegetables; a dinner wine; coffee — and five bottles of vintage champagne. The bill was $36.40 — "Just about what they owe me," Smith said as he walked out. He has now been committed for trial on charges of obtaining credit by fraud.

INDIANS SPLIT UP — The divorce rate in New Delhi, population 260,272, doubled in two years to 382 last year.

The provincial government has created a new Class-A Park in northern B.C.

More than 2,400 acres of land surrounding Bear and Heart Lakes, about 50 miles north of Prince George, were removed from timber reserve Monday so that the park can be created.

A 50-unit campsite has already been established there but will be enlarged.

INSIDE RESERVE — The spot was inside the Hydro reserve, doomed to be submerged by the Peace River

India Plans Massive TV Network

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India is preparing an ambitious plan to cover the country with a network of television stations catering to 16 states, 14 major languages and a population of nearly 500,000,000.

The plan has been approved by the cabinet and will cost an estimated 1,000,000,000 rupees ($226,000,000) during the next 20 years.

Bi-weekly educational television programs were introduced experimentally in New Delhi in 1959. The ministry of information and broadcasting considers that the success of this experiment has justified the development of television throughout India.

Regular daily programs, with more emphasis on entertainment, are due to begin in New Delhi in August. At present, the capital has only 600 receiving sets, mostly in schools and community centres.

Order Head On Way

By RUTH McKELLAR

COURTENAY — Reverend Mother Maura of the Roman Catholic Order of the Sisters of St. Joseph, which operates St. Joseph's Hospital at Comox, is coming to Courtenay from Toronto in the wake of controversy over the hospital's future status.

On the one hand, city council and various other groups have urged voter support of a referendum July 29. DISTRICT PROPOSAL

If passed, the referendum would form the Comox Valley into a hospital district and give major financial aid to the sisters' hospital, as a district institution.

But on the other hand, many residents, including some prominent doctors, are urging citizens to break with the privately-controlled hospital in any district formation, and set up a public institution.

Chamber of commerce directors voted to a man for a public hospital rather than tax support for St. Joseph's.

The sisters are known to be concerned about the controversy.

It is into this atmosphere of conflict that the Reverend Mother is coming this week.

Dr. Glen Stewart of Courtenay has added his voice to those asking for a publicly-owned regional hospital.

In a brief to city council this week, Dr. Stewart said a regional hospital should be built on a new site.

It would cost $4,000,000, and would have 125 beds. Dr. Stewart said the new institution would take up to five years to complete.

Mayor George Hobson said citizens expected the council to take a stand, and the council did: It voted to recommend the people vote in favor of tax support for St. Joseph's.

Voters will be asked two questions: Are you in favor of the formation of a regional district and sharing in the cost of constructing and equipping hospitals? Are you in favor of the regional district granting aid not exceeding the sum of $650,000 to assist in the construction of St. Joseph's Hospital, Comox?

FOUR QUESTIONS
Mayor George Hobson of Courtenay said voters must ask four questions before marking their ballots:

Does the area need a new hospital? When is it needed? How much are residents prepared to pay? Will the hospital meet all the medical needs of the district?

If a publicly-owned hospital replaced St. Joseph's as the regional institution, it would be administered by a layman, and run by an elected board, which would represent all areas contributing to the tax assessment, plus a government member.

If the new regional hospital is run by the sisters, the administrator would be a sister superior.

It would also have a board comprised of a representative of each area contributing tax dollars, a government member, and three lay members appointed by the Reverend Mother Maura.

Cumberland commission, meeting Monday, voted in favor of formation of a regional district in the Comox Valley, which is to be put before the voters on July 29.

On the second question which will be on the referendum ballot, commissioners refused to take a public stand.

The commission, however, did agree to have a card printed and distributed to every owner-elect within the municipal area, setting forth the complete picture of what happens when a regional district is formed.

On the same card it will be clearly explained that a "yes" vote to question No. 2 will be solely in favor of construction of St. Joseph's Hospital.

CHAMBER MEETING

Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will hold a director's meeting today to discuss the possibility of holding a public meeting regarding the regional district and hospital construction.

It is understood if such a meeting is called there will be two speakers, who will give the complete picture of what happens if a hospital is built at Sisters of St. Joseph, and what happens if a publicly owned hospital is built.

Find 1,650 Years Old

Galiano Object Dates Back to 300 A.D.

By MARY BACKLUND

GALIANO ISLAND—Recent findings by a team of archaeologists at Montague Harbor give evidence of a period of occupation of the area about 300 A.D.

During last year's excavation, the archaeological team found evidence of three distinct periods of occupation before 300 A.D.

This year's discovery comes during a period of extensive study at the harbor, which will last until early September.

The expedition is financed by the provincial government, the Archaeological Sites Advisory Board, and the University of Victoria.

Accompanying field director Don Mitchell are six workers from University of Victoria, UBC, and Toronto: John Sandy, David Keenleyside, Judy Buxton, John Neary, David Sawbridge, and Dimitro Hakas.

They began the excavation expecting to find burials, and have a licence to excavate these grounds, include skeletons.

So far they have found two ancient burial grounds, and are working on what they believe is a third such ground.

They have also found portions of two human skulls.

"They could be 2,000 years old," Mr. Mitchell commented. The group has also found fishing equipment, indicative of sea-mammal hunting, expected in the area.

Most exciting find so far has been a microblade.

SPECIAL TECHNIQUE

This is an artifact of particular interest to archaeologists, because it typifies a special technique of production.

The microblade is prepared from a one inch cylinder of quartz, and only those with advanced skills are capable of preparing this core and producing the parallel-edged flakes.

TINY OBJECT

The microblade found is about three-quarters of an inch long, and one-quarter of an inch wide.

It was probably detached from the cylinder by a small soft hammer.

The microblade was used for producing small, sharp knife blades which were so fragile they were used only for fine work: such as cutting grass for baskets, or carefully cutting hides.

NORTHERN INTERIOR

Microblades are most common in the northern interior of Western North America, though some have been found near Victoria.

One found at Point Roberts definitely dates at 300 A.D.

Mr. Mitchell said it is quite possible the microblade found at Montague Harbor is of the same period, giving strong indication of a period of occupation on Galiano of about 1,650 years ago.

Author Visits Old Home Town

By SUSIE McCONNELL BIRD

TOFINO — Major George Nicholson, author of the popular book 'Vancouver Island's West Coast, paid a visit to Uchuel, Kennedy Lake, Long Beach and Tofino recently.

Major Nicholson lived in Tofino for many years, then moved to Zeballos during the gold boom.

In Zeballos he was postmaster, agent for an oil firm, an airline, and mining recording in the mine towns heyday.

Major Nicholson's only son C. W. Nicholson, lives at Tofino with his wife and family, as does Major Nicholson's daughter Mrs. Bonnie Arnet.

Major Nicholson and his wife now live in Victoria, and pay occasional visits to Tofino.

Another visitor here recently was Dr. G. H. Cottrell, Portland, who specializes in looking for evidence of historic ships which have gone down off the coast.

DUNCAN—A total of $105 was assessed against Kathleen Audrey Baker, Lake Cowichan, for driving while suspended and failing to yield one half of the road.

James Martin of Duncan pleaded guilty to being drunk and attempting to steal an article valued at less than $50 from the glove compartment of a car. He was remanded for sentence pending a probation report.

Old wrecks on the west coast was an important feature of Major Nicholson's writing, and the major was sorry to miss Dr. Cottrell on his trip.

Dr. Cottrell headed an expedition of Canadian and American historians looking for the American trading ship Tonquin which was sunk on the west coast of the Island 150 years ago.

The party spent several days at Tofino, then went to Kyuquot. Aboard Dr. Cottrell's yacht are writers and divers.

Medicare Clears Decks for Fall Election

By FRANK KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Twenty million Canadians may get medicare without any increase in their federal taxes, Finance Minister Gordon hinted Tuesday.

He said he hoped the country's booming economy could absorb the federal government's $300,000,000 half-share of the medicare cost.

The hint was immediately labelled another pre-election sweetener.

Countless provincial and many federal officials at the conference are now predicting that the election is on this fall for sure.

At a reception Tuesday they were placing bets on the date. The most popular: Oct. 18. They reasoned that with the general acceptance of his medicare proposal, Prime Minister Pearson has now completed the major planks of his 1963 election platform.

He can now go to the country with a proud record of legislative achievement, asking for a clear mandate.

Mr. Gordon who has long been urging Prime Minister Pearson to call an election was strangely silent Tuesday night.

What was the election date? "You're asking the wrong man," he replied, presumably referring to Prime Minister Pearson.

He was asked what major election promises of 1963 still needed to be fulfilled.

He replied that in the last election, Canadians were most interested in three subjects: policies to provide more jobs,

the Canada Pension Plan and medicare.

All have now, for all intents and purposes, been accomplished.

Tuesday one provincial premier told newsmen the federal government's election program "is as plain as the nose on your face."

They said the questions their federal counterparts were asking them clearly indicated an election was coming.

Today the federal-provincial conference turns to the explosive question of offshore

Crash Kills Duncan Man

DUNCAN—Fred Payne, 65, of Duncan, died at 8 p.m. Tuesday in hospital after he was involved in an accident on Cowichan Lake road. Another car and a tree-pruning truck were involved.

In Chemainus Hospital with chest injuries is Ernest F. Armitage of Crofton. Driving the truck was Lawrence E. Brawner, 1814 Oak Bay Avenue. He was not injured.

The truck was driving toward Duncan, when a ballast fell from the back into the path of the Payne vehicle, causing it to swerve across the road into the path of the Armitage vehicle.

to premiers: See Page 7

Manpower Too Low For Plan?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two prominent Canadian physicians warned Tuesday nation-wide medicare may fall for lack of manpower.

Pearson

Poverty Parley Proposed

OTTAWA (CP)—A call for a conference on "poverty and opportunity" was issued at the federal-provincial conference Tuesday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Putting the proposition before provincial premiers, Mr. Pearson said he hoped the meeting could be organized for "sometime around the middle of next year."

Outlining the ground the conference would cover, he said:

EXPERT ANALYSIS
"We would propose that the conference should be designed to provide an expert analysis of problems and to enlist informed views on the action that is and might be taken to improve Canada's use of human resources, to enlarge opportunities and to help all Canadians to share in rising living standards."

Opportunity would be provided for those in voluntary agencies, the universities, business, trade unions, and farmers to set out their views.

PEARSON AGREES
Mr. Pearson said he is in the "hottest agreement" with these premiers advocating the value of consultation and co-ordination in programs for better utilization of human resources.

"... The federal secretariat is assembling existing measures in relation to the problems and from that assessment proposals for further federal action will develop."

But, if the provinces agreed, federal government officials would meet provincial officials for an informal exchange of views, Mr. Pearson said.

Greek Cabinet Given Strength

ATHENS (AP) — King Constantine swore in five more cabinet ministers Tuesday night, strengthening the new government and his own position in a crisis that was bringing challenges to the monarchy itself.

Messenger Mulcahy

$2,800,000 Headache

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two strongarm Wall Street handits shoved a bank messenger into a doorway Tuesday and grabbed a money sack containing about $2,800,000 in negotiable blue chip stock certificates.

The securities, which included Ford Motor Co. and Northwest Airline certificates, were owned by Goodbody & Co. of 2 Broadway.

They were being delivered to the Bank of Nova Scotia by Gerald Mulcahy of Hoboken, N.J., a messenger for the brokerage firm of Carlisle & Jacquelin, also of 2 Broadway.

Police said one of the bandits shoved a hard object into Mulcahy's back, pushed him into a doorway and told him to be quiet for five minutes while they made their escape, apparently on foot through the busy financial district.

Police described one of the men as bald and stocky, and wearing dark slacks and a short-sleeved shirt. The other wore a dark suit and sun glasses.

Mulcahy told police later he waited in the doorway for five minutes before returning to his employer and reporting the robbery.

The messenger said the thieves also took his wallet.

A stock exchange spokesman said cashing the certificates would be extremely difficult, though not impossible. He said before they could be cashed they would have to bear the signature of the owner of record. That signature would have to be guaranteed by either a bank or a stock exchange member.

"I think they've got a white elephant on their hands," said Edwin Soyer, a partner in the Goodbody firm.

Harold Goodbody, managing partner of the firm, said the company had issued an immediate order to all brokers to stop payment on the stolen securities.

Soyer said the company was insured for the loss.

Canadians Told in Moscow

Russia Ready to Help In Settling Conflict

MOSCOW (CP) — President Anastas Mikoyan indicated to a group of Canadian parliamentarians Tuesday the Soviet Union is using—or is prepared to use—its good offices to help settle the war in Viet Nam.

In effect he agreed with a suggestion by T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, that both Canada and Russia should do all they can to bring an end to the conflict.

The statement by the Soviet president came at a one-hour meeting in his Kremlin office between Mikoyan and the 14-member delegation of parliamentarians who arrived here

Mikoyan

Monday for an 11-day tour of the Soviet Union.

Douglas, introduced to Mikoyan by Commons Speaker

Alan Macnaughton, told him that his party is concerned over the situation in Viet Nam.

He suggested the Canadian and Soviet governments should be doing more to bring about a peaceful settlement. Since neither country was directly involved in the fighting they might use their good offices—act as "go-between or honest brokers"—to resolve a situation that could escalate into a much more serious conflict.

HOPE FOR MISSION

Douglas expressed hope "even yet" something might come of the thus-far abortive Commonwealth peace mission for Viet Nam.

Replying in carefully measured words, Mikoyan said he appreciated the NDP leader's concern.

SOME ILLUSIONS

However, there were "some illusions" connected with the desire for a Commonwealth peace mission. Two Commonwealth countries—Australia and New Zealand—were taking a direct part in the fighting, he said.

"If they wanted peace in Viet Nam they should have withdrawn their troops."

BASIS SEEN

The Geneva agreements of 1954 provided a good basis for peace in Viet Nam but the United States had violated them.

"They have only to go back to these agreements to restore a peaceful situation," Mikoyan added.

"I understand you have great difficulty in controlling such unruly countries as the United States."

Drought and Winter: Disaster Down Under

By ROBERT COLEMAN

MELBOURNE (CP)—The onset of winter soon in eastern Australia poses an added burden for farmers who have come through one of the worst droughts with weakened herds of livestock.

Half the Australian continent is suffering from the worst drought since 1944, and in some parts it is the most severe in 50 years.

Thousands of head of sheep and cattle have died during the many rainless months, and with winter coming in, the losses are expected to go much higher.

The worst affected areas are in New South Wales, parts of Queensland in central Australia, and some parts of Victoria state.

J. G. Beale, New South Wales conservation minister, said recently Australia already has lost $10,000,000 Australian ($24,000,000) in wheat, livestock, livestock replacements and beef exports.

Beale estimated the losses could go as high as $30,000,000 ($72,000,000) to $100,000,000 ($242,000,000) before the end of the year.

Heavy weekend rains in parts of New South Wales were of little help to drought-hit areas and the cold weather—there was snow in some places where snow never before had been recorded—already is taking a toll of livestock.

Many big landowners have sold out most of their livestock in the arid areas to keep going.

In parts of central Australia, where the drought has lasted 10 years, the big ranches have had to cart water up to 50 miles for household use. These ranches have reduced their stock to one-tenth of normal.

The Hunter River area in northern New South Wales is well known as a dairy farming area, where droughts are practically unheard of. Now, it is experiencing the worst drought of the century.

The biggest exodus ever to livestock from New South Wales and Queensland into Victoria state has been under way for several months.

The drought has spared southern Victoria state, which is having a bountiful season, and the farmers have not forgotten their stricken friends. They have given hundreds of thousands of bales of hay to help relieve grassless pastures.

Victorians remember New South Wales and Queensland farmers who came to their rescue after the disastrous bushfires of 1939. Farmers from Tasmania and south Australia also have donated fodder and money. City dwellers in all states have contributed funds, too.

Experts say it is impossible to estimate livestock losses until a census is taken next year.

Car in Bedroom Rude Awakening

DUNCAN—Some nights it just doesn't pay to wake up.

Late Monday night Mr. and Mrs. Bruce David of 731 Jubilee St. were forcibly awakened when suddenly a car crashed into their bedroom.

Driver Sandra Jones of Duncan, who received knee injuries, lost control over the car she was driving when it was struck from behind by an auto driven by Edward S. Guay.

The accident occurred when Miss Jones attempted to turn into the driveway at her home. Police estimated the total damage at $4,700.

Strachan to Speak

Cougar Bounty Topic of Meeting

DUNCAN — Cowichan-Newcastle MLA Robert Strachan will discuss the question whether or not to press for re-establishment of a cougar bounty with Cowichan Fish and Game Association president Arbie Williams, Mrs. Harold Leader, who spearheaded a petition and other interested residents, at 8 p.m. today.

The discussion will take place at the home of Cobble Hill sheep breeder Hamish Sibbald. Mr. Williams Tuesday commented, "This attempt to have a bounty returned is just the latest of many."

"The Fish and Game Association in the past has asked for a better type of cougar control, but we have been refused."

Mr. Williams expressed his doubt as to the bounty return soon, because "there is no bounty on the North American continent."

Manitoba Students To Visit Nanaimo

NANAIMO—In less than three weeks 24 students from Steinbach, Manitoba, will be arriving in Nanaimo as part of a centennial youth exchange program.

On Monday 24 students from the central island area left for Montreal, on the first leg of the project. Accompanying the students as staff sponsor was Peter McIntyre, one of the counsellors at Nanaimo Senior High School. Fifteen of the students came from Nanaimo, three each from Ladysmith, Chemainus, and Salt Spring Island.

On Aug. 5 the Manitoba students arrive in Nanaimo accompanied by two adult escorts, and they will be staying in homes of local residents.

Before leaving on Aug. 12, tours have been arranged for the students, who will see Cathedral Grove, Nanaimo Lakes Logging Operations, the Biological Station, Harmac Pulp Mill and the Undersea Gardens in Victoria.

COURTENAY — Reverend Mother Maura of the Roman Catholic Order of the Sisters of St. Joseph, which operates St. Joseph's Hospital at Comox, is coming to Courtenay from Toronto in the wake of controversy over the hospital's future status.

On the one hand, city council and various other groups have urged voter support of a referendum July 29.

DISTRICT PROPOSAL

If passed, the referendum would form the Comox Valley into a hospital district and give major financial aid to the sisters' hospital, as a district institution.

But on the other hand, many residents, including some prominent doctors, are urging citizens to break with the privately-controlled hospital in any district formation, and set up a public institution.

Chamber of commerce directors voted to a man for a public hospital rather than tax support for St. Joseph's.

The sisters are known to be concerned about the controversy.

TENSE ATMOSPHERE

It is into this atmosphere of conflict that the Reverend Mother is coming this week.

Dr. Glen Stewart of Courtenay has added his voice to those asking for a publicly-owned regional hospital.

In a brief to city council this week, Dr. Stewart said a regional hospital should be built on a new site.

It would cost $4,030,000, and would have 145 beds. Dr. Stewart said the new institution would take up to five years to complete.

Mayor George Hobson said citizens expected the council to take a stand, and the council did: It voted to recommend the people vote in favor of tax support for St. Joseph's.

Voters will be asked two questions: Are you in favor of the formation of a regional district and sharing in the cost of constructing and equipping hospitals? Are you in favor of the regional district granting aid not exceeding the sum of $50,000 to assist in the construction of St. Joseph's Hospital, Comox?

FOUR QUESTIONS

Mayor George Hobson of Courtenay said voters must ask four questions before marking their ballots:

Does the area need a new hospital? When is it needed? How much are residents prepared to pay? Will the hospital meet all the medical needs of the district?

self a publicly-owned hospital replaced St. Joseph's as the regional institution, it would be administered by a layman, and run by an elected board, which would represent all areas contributing to the tax assessment, plus a government member.

If the new regional hospital is run by the sisters, the administrator would be a sister superior.

EACH AREA

It would also have a board comprised of a representative of each area contributing tax dollars, a government member, and three lay members appointed by the Reverend Mother Maura.

Cumberland Chamber, meeting Monday, voted in favor of formation of a regional district in the Comox Valley, which is to be put before the owners-electors for a vote on July 29.

On the second question which will be on the referendum ballot, commissioners refused to take a public stand.

The commission, however, did agree to have a card printed and distributed to every owner-electors within the municipal area, setting forth the complete picture of what happens when a regional district is formed.

On the same card it will be clearly explained that a "yes" vote to question No. 2 will be solely in favor of construction of St. Joseph's Hospital.

CHAMBER MEETING

Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will hold a director's meeting today to discuss the possibility of holding a public meeting regarding the regional district and hospital construction.

It is understood if such a meeting is called there will be two speakers, who will give the complete picture of what happens if a hospital is built at Sisters of St. Joseph, and what happens if a publicly owned hospital is built.

Nanaimo Pledged New Route North

NANAIMO—Mayor Pete Maffeo has pledged city council action to initiate a new route through Nanaimo, bypassing congested George Pearson Bridge.

The bridge route has long been a source of traffic tieups in the hub city.

It is the only straight route from city centre north to the Departure Bay ferry, and to up-island points.

It is fringed by water and the Civic Arena on one side, and by Tally-Ho Motel on another.

One possible solution would be a new route on the water side of the arena, a short distance out from the present bridge, creating a second crossing and easing the bottleneck.

After Exchange Trip

Friendships Blossom

By KLAUS MUEENTER

DUNCAN—An exchange trip has resulted in fast friendship between a Duncan girl and a teen-ager from Quebec.

Odette Pruneau, 18, is now staying with Alma Colk, 17, of 855 McDonald.

Both girls spent two weeks at Odette's place in Victoriaville, Que., about 100 miles east of Montreal.

200 MAKE TRIP

The exchange trip of 16 boys and girls from Vancouver Island and a total of 200 from across Canada who arrived at Montreal at the beginning of this month is sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

On its return trip to the west a few days ago the special train carried 436 young people. Pretty Odette Pruneau made sure she saw the awesome Rocky Mountains. She got up at 4 a.m. one day just as the train began its climb.

SWITCH TO ENGLISH

While French was the language used during the stay in Quebec, the girls have now switched to English and the visitor from Victoriaville described with ease her impressions of her trip to the Pacific.

WORM HOSPITALITY

"Vancouver Island and its people are wonderful," she said. Miss Colk said the same about Quebec, where varied entertainment was provided for the youngsters.

GALIANO ISLAND—Recent findings by a team of archaeologists at Montague Harbor give evidence of a period of occupation of the area about 300 A.D.

During last year's excavation, the archaeological team found evidence of three distinct periods of occupation before 300 A.D.

This year's discovery comes during a period of extensive study at the harbor, which will last until early September.

The expedition is financed by the provincial government, the Archaeological Sites Advisory Board, and the University of Victoria.

Accompanying field director Don Mitchell are six workers from University of Victoria, UBC, and Toronto: John Sandy, David Keenleyside, Judy Buxton, John Noury, David Sawbridge, and Dimitro Hakis.

They began the excavation expecting to find burials, and have a licence to excavate these grounds, include skeletons.

So far they have found two ancient burial grounds, and are working on what they believe is a third such ground.

They have also found portions of two human skulls. "They could be 2,000 years old," Mr. Mitchell commented.

The group has also found fishing equipment, indicative of sea-mammal hunting, expected in the area.

Most exciting find so far has been a microblade.

SPECIAL TECHNIQUE

This is an artifact of particular interest to archaeologists, because it typifies a special technique of production.

The microblade is prepared from a one inch cylinder of quartz, and only those with advanced skills are capable of preparing this core and producing the parallel-edged flakes.

TINY OBJECT

The microblade found is about three-quarters of an inch long, and one-quarter of an inch wide.

It was probably detached from the cylinder by a small soft hammer.

The microblade was used for producing small razor-sharp knife blades which were so fragile they were used only for fine work: such as cutting grass for baskets, or carefully cutting hides.

NORTHERN INTERIOR

Microblades are most common in the northern interior of Western North America, though some have been found near Victoria.

Mr. Mitchell said it is quite possible the microblade found at Montague Harbor is of the same period, giving strong indication of a period of occupation on Galiano of about 1,650 years ago.

FULFORD—Many sights are caught in the sun, in dawn rambles along Fulford shores. Vessels of all shapes and sizes come into the harbor, but none are so lovely as the sailing ships that catch the breeze.

A pretty sight was the navy ship Oriole as she sailed into Fulford recently, accompanied by two harbor craft.

Several blackfish were noted coming up harbor early in the morning.

They cruised close to the docks at Fulford before blowing out to sea.

An unusual number of ducks and divers (birds, of course) are seen in Fulford which indicates the presence of small fish.

Not too many large fish were caught, the big ones got away, so the fishermen said.

It was agreed by council that parents and the general public must exert more control in the matter of young people driving cars.

HOUSE DEBATE Two houses which were to be moved from Cliffe Avenue caused controversy at the meeting, and on hand to debate the question was a delegation of six men, two in favour and four against the move.

Council has passed a law which sets out provisions under which houses may be moved into another area. The application to move the houses was made before the passage of the law but was only tentative agreement.

No permits had been taken out despite the fact the two houses are now ready to be moved.

The bylaw aims to prevent old houses being moved into an area of new homes, and states that any house moved in must be brought up to a minimum standard of $10,000 re-sale value.

SOME DON'T MIND Those opposed to the moving said that a house of $10,000 is not very much today. The contractor agreed to put up a bond guaranteeing the homes would be brought up to the standard and produced a petition to show other owners of homes in the area did not oppose the moving in of the two houses.

Council was told while the bylaw is now in force, the mayor has the option of bringing it to council for reconsideration, within a time limit of 30 days. Later in the meeting notice was given by Ald. Browning that he would present an amendment to the bylaw at the next meeting of council. No action was taken on the subject of the houses to be moved.

By SUSIE McCONNELL BIRD TOFINO — Major George Nicholson, author of the popular book Vancouver Island's West Coast, paid a visit to Uchuelet, Kennedy Lake, Long Beach and Tofino recently.

Major Nicholson lived in Tofino for many years, then moved to Zeballos during the gold boom.

In Zeballos he was postmaster, agent for an oil firm, an airline, and mining recording in the mine towns heyday.

Major Nicholson's only son C. W. Nicholson, lives at Tofino with his wife and family, as does Major Nicholson's daughter Mrs. Bonnie Arnet.

Major Nicholson and his wife now live in Victoria, and pay occasional visits to Tofino.

Another visitor here recently was Dr. G. H. Cottrell, Portland, who specializes in looking for evidence of historic ships which have gone down off the coast.

DUNCAN — A total of $105 was assessed against Kathleen Audrey Baker, Lake Cowichan, for driving while suspended and failing to yield one half of the road.

James Martin of Duncan pleaded guilty to being drunk and attempting to steal an article valued at less than $50 from the glove compartment of a car. He was remanded for sentence pending a probation report.

Dr. Cottrell headed an expedition of Canadian and American historians looking for the American trading ship Tonquin which was sunk on the west coast of the Island 150 years ago.

The party spent several days at Tofino, then went to Kyuquot. Aboard Dr. Cottrell's yacht are writers and divers.

Medicare Clears Decks for Fall Election

By FRANK KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Twenty million Canadians may get medicare without any increase in their federal taxes, Finance Minister Gordon hinted Tuesday.

The hint was immediately labelled another pre-election sweetener.

Countless provincial and many federal officials at the conference are now predicting that the election is on this fall for sure.

At a reception Tuesday they were placing bets on the date. The most popular: Oct. 18. They reasoned that with the general acceptance of his medicare proposal, Prime Minister Pearson has now completed the major planks of his 1963 election platform.

He can now go to the country with a proud record of legislative achievement, asking for a clear mandate.

What was the election date? "You're asking the wrong man," he replied, presumably referring to Prime Minister Pearson.

He was asked what major election promises of 1963 still needed to be fulfilled.

He replied that in the last election, Canadians were most interested in three subjects: policies to provide more jobs,

the Canada Pension Plan and medicare.

All have now, for all intents and purposes, been accomplished.

Tuesday one provincial premier told newsmen the federal government's election program "is as plain as the nose on your face."

He sprang his medicare proposal in the manner he did to catch the provincial premiers off guard.

They said the questions their federal counterparts were asking them clearly indicated an election was coming.

Today the federal-provincial conference turns to the explosive question of offshore

Delegates Invited Here Next Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Bennett of British Columbia Tuesday invited the federal government and the provinces to hold a conference in his province next year.

A spokesman said the invitation was issued for 1966, the centenary of the joining together of the B.C. mainland and Vancouver Island.

The spokesman said it was expected the invitation would be accepted, but it has not been decided whether the conference would be mainly ceremonial or a business meeting.

Poverty Parley Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — A call for a conference on "poverty and opportunity" was issued at the federal-provincial conference Tuesday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Putting the proposition before provincial premiers, Mr. Pearson said he hoped the meeting could be organized for "some time around the middle of next year."

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Outlining the ground the conference would cover, he said: "We would propose that the conference should be designed to provide an expert analysis of problems and to enlist informed views on the action that is and might be taken to improve Canada's use of human resources, to enlarge opportunities and to help all Canadians to share in rising living standards."

Opportunity would be provided for those in voluntary agencies, the universities, business, trade unions, and farmers to set out their views.

PEARSON AGREES

Mr. Pearson said he is in the "fullest agreement" with those premiers advocating the value of consultation and co-ordination in programs for better utilization of human resources.

The federal secretary is assessing existing measures in relation to the problems and from that assessment proposals for further federal action will develop.

But, if the provinces agreed, federal government officials would meet provincial officials for an informal exchange of views, Mr. Pearson said.

Greek Cabinet Given Strength

ATHENS (AP) — King Constantine swore in five more cabinet ministers Tuesday night, strengthening the new government and his own position in a crisis that was bringing challenges to the monarchy itself.

Messenger Mulcahy

$2,800,000 Headache

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two strongarm Wall Street bandits shoved a bank messenger into a doorway Tuesday and grabbed a money sack containing about $2,800,000 in negotiable blue chip stock certificates.

The securities, which included Ford Motor Co. and Northwest Airline certificates, were owned by Goodbody & Co. of 2 Broadway.

They were being delivered to the Bank of Nova Scotia by Gerald Mulcahy of Hoboken, N.J., a messenger for the brokerage firm of Carlisle & Jacquelin, also of 2 Broadway.

Police said one of the bandits shoved a hard object into Mulcahy's back, pushed him into a doorway and told him to be quiet for five minutes while they made their escape, apparently on foot through the busy financial district.

Police described one of the men as bald and stocky, and wearing dark slacks and a short-sleeved shirt. The other was a dark, slim man in a suit and glasses.

Mulcahy told police later he waited in the doorway for five minutes before returning to his employer and reporting the robbery.

The messenger said the thieves also took his wallet.

A stock exchange spokesman said cashing the certificates would be extremely difficult, though not impossible. He said before they could be cashed they would have to bear the signature of the owner of record. That signature would have to be guaranteed by either a bank or a stock exchange member.

"I think they've got a white elephant on their hands," said Edwin Soyars, a partner in the Goodbody firm. Harold Goodbody, managing partner of the firm, said the company had issued an immediate order to all brokers to stop payment on the stolen securities.

Soyars said the company was insured for the loss.

STRIKE FEVER HITS POSTMEN

A strike-now-talk-later move among Vancouver and Montreal letter carriers spread to Vancouver Island Tuesday night.

Port Alberni's 16-man local of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers voted to go on strike at 2 a.m. Thursday in conjunction with strike action voted by Vancouver and Montreal locals.

W. Campbell, executive member of the Letter Carriers Union in Nanaimo, said his organization will follow Vancouver if strike action is taken this week. He estimated that 30 Nanaimo mailmen would be involved.

Spokesman for the Canadian Postal Employees' Association, representing the postal clerks, William Hygh, said his members would not participate in a wildcat strike, but would follow instructions from the national headquarters in Ottawa. The Postal Employees' also have 20 members in Nanaimo.

In Victoria, E. J. Bell, president of the Letter Carriers branch here said Tuesday night a joint meeting of clerks and carrier executives ended with a decision to call a mass meeting of local members "to let them decide what action we will take, wait for word from national headquarters—or strike now."

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at the Union Centre building on Quadra Street north of Hillside and is expected to draw most of the 200 local carriers and clerks.

Canadians Told in Moscow

Russia Ready to Help In Settling Conflict

MOSCOW (CP) — President Anastas Mikoyan indicated to a group of Canadian parliamentarians Tuesday the Soviet Union is using—or is prepared to use—its good offices to help settle the war in Viet Nam.

In effect he agreed with a suggestion by T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, that both Canada and Russia should do all they can to bring an end to the conflict.

EVERY MEASURE

The positions of the two countries make it imperative that they "take every measure" to help end hostilities, Mikoyan declared.

The statement by the Soviet president came at a one-hour meeting in his Kremlin office between Mikoyan and the 14-member delegation of parliamentarians who arrived here Monday for an 11-day tour of the Soviet Union.

Douglas, introduced to Mikoyan by Commons Speaker

Mikoyan

Alan Macnaughton, told him that his party is concerned over the situation in Viet Nam.

He suggested the Canadian and Soviet governments should be doing more to bring about a peaceful settlement. Since neither country was directly involved in the fighting they might use their good offices—act as "go-betweens or honest brokers"—to resolve a situation that could escalate into a much more serious conflict.

HOPE FOR MISSION

Douglas expressed hope "even yet" something might come of the thus-far abortive Commonwealth peace mission for Viet Nam.

Replying in carefully measured words, Mikoyan said he appreciated the NDP leader's concern.

SOME ILLUSIONS

However, there were "some illusions" connected with the desire for a Commonwealth peace mission. Two Commonwealth countries—Australia and New Zealand—were taking a direct part in the fighting, he said.

"If they wanted peace in Viet Nam they should have withdrawn their troops."

BASIS SEEN

The Geneva agreements of 1954 provided a good basis for peace in Viet Nam but the United States had violated them.

"They have only to go back to these agreements to restore a peaceful situation," Mikoyan added.

"I understand you have great difficulty in controlling such unruly countries as the United States."

Drought and Winter: Disaster Down Under

By ROBERT COLEMAN

MELBOURNE (CP) — The onset of winter soon in eastern Australia poses an added burden for farmers who have come through one of the worst droughts with weakened herds of livestock.

Half the Australian continent is suffering from the worst drought since 1944, and in some parts it is the most severe in 50 years.

Thousands of head of sheep and cattle have died during the many rainless months, and with winter closing in, the losses are expected to go much higher.

The worst affected areas are in New South Wales, parts of Queensland in central Australia, and some parts of Victoria state.

J. G. Beale, New South Wales conservation minister, said recently Australia already has lost 100,000,000 Australian ($24-200,000) in wheat, livestock, livestock replacements and beef exports.

Beale estimated the losses could go as high as $30,000,000 ($72,000,000) to $100,000,000 ($242,000,000) before the end of the year.

Heavy weekend rains in parts of New South Wales were of little help to drought-hit areas and the cold weather—there was snow in some places where snow never before had been recorded—already is taking a toll of livestock.

Many big landowners have sold out most of their livestock in the arid areas to keep going.

In parts of central Australia, where the drought has lasted 10 years, the big ranches have had to cart water up to 50 miles for household use. These ranches have reduced their stock to one-tenth of normal.

The Hunter River area in northern New South Wales is well known as a dairy farming area, where droughts are practically unheard of. Now, it is experiencing the worst drought of the century.

The biggest exodus ever of livestock from New South Wales and Queensland into Victoria state has been under way for several months.

The drought has spared southern Victoria state, which is having a bountiful season, and the farmers have not forgotten their stricken friends. They have given hundreds of thousands of bales of hay to help relieve grassless pastures.

Victorians remember New South Wales and Queensland farmers who came to their rescue after the disastrous bushfires of 1939. Farmers from Tasmania and south Australia also have donated fodder and money. City dwellers in all states have contributed funds, too.

Experts say it is impossible to estimate livestock losses until a census is taken next year.
